GERRY WIGGETT

In September, 1908, there entered B.C.S. a serious-faced, dark-eyed New Boy who was destined to influence the School's life for over a quarter century. That boy was Gerald Moore Wiggett, whose death on November 30, 1956, closed a chapter of public service and leadership in various fields, but in none more productive, we believe, than in that of his beloved avocation, hockey.

As a schoolboy great with nine goals in the Stanstead match, as a 17-year-old Allan Cup Series player whose brilliance drew from the late George Kennedy a Canadian pro contract (which Gerry's father, shocked, promptly repudiated), as an amateur star with Boston Inter-colonials, in his great fight against paralysis by polio, and later, in his years as a Can-Am and N.H.L. referee, Gerry developed a wisdom, a sense of humour and a patience with which few are endowed.

These qualities he brought back to his old School. He first coached during part of a season in 1926, and came again, as regular School hockey coach, in 1931. From his business in Sherbrooke, he took afternoon time out to build and direct our first teams and to train B.C.S. boys in his code of sportsmanship. He coached his last game on January 31, 1956, when his Boys unknowingly gave him a memorable farewell with an outburst of 18 goals.

During these years, the A.O.B.A. trophy came to his teams thirteen times in twenty-two years of competition, yet Gerry's ideal was not victory, but rather the game itself, the self-control it can develop, the co-operative effort it can awaken in the most egotistic youth. His methods were quiet and unobtrusive; his advice, given before a practice faceoff, or, in later years, murmured over the boards, was intensive, thoughtful, and solidly instructive.

Hosts of his contemporaries and many of his boys knew and loved him for his humour. He used the needle with great effect to relieve tension in the dressing room, but generally, the jibe was given in sheer, good fun. Pomposity sharpened his keenest wit, but even his best friends had to learn that he would work them over unmercifully—and how they loved it! Wherever his teams invaded new territory, we knew they would be doubly welcome to come back, both because of their behaviour and the contagious goodwill which Gerry brought with him. Where he had travelled before, his very name opened the gates of welcome and hospitality.

His patience was an inspiration, his appreciation of his colleagues, heartening. When he first came to us, hockey was a major sport, it is true, but for the younger boys, it was neither well organized nor very interesting. Gerry believed that in hockey's discipline a boy well below First Team age could learn much, and he was solidly behind the plan to have all boys possible enter competitive, extra-mural hockey. This took time, and there were frustrations, but he showed no sign of impatience. The results would come, he said, and in a few years, they were evident. Gerry was generous in his recognition of the time and work involved, and equally modest in his own achievement. "You fellows who handle the minor creases," he once said, "don't give me a thing to do!" He was confident that with progressive, disciplined experience, he could develop in the relatively small School a continuity of teams of which our constituency might well be proud. We doubt that many have been disappointed.

It is indeed fitting that the Old Boys' Association has presented a trophy in his memory to be "Awarded to the boy on the B.C.S. Hockey Team who, in the opinion of the coach, best combines sportsmanship and ability."

Gerry, we believe, would approve.

SCHOOL RECORD

THE CHOIR AT TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

THE CHOIR

The Choir took its annual trip in the fall when it visited St. Matthias Church, Westmount, and sang Stanford's settings of the Holy Communion and Mattins. Since then we have been very busy learning the music of the "Pirates." In spite of this, however, we managed to learn new anthems for Easter and Confirmation, and also took part in the Sherbrooke Youth Festival. Far more boys are learning to become soloists and so, as well as taking part with the Choir, M. Bell, R. Brown, and M. Rowat sang songs and anthems in German, French, and English. R. MacDonald and M. Rowat also entered the competition as pianists and played their prepared pieces with considerable skill. It would be good to see even more boys from the choir taking piano lessons. No one can ever become a reliable chorister until he can read music and play his own part for himself on the piano. Seldom have opportunities for learning been better as we are fortunate in having the services of Mrs. R. Bell and Miss B. Dawson as teachers.

There is no doubt, too, that with the aid of tape recorder and gramophone the choir is hearing and learning a vastly larger repertoire of music than ever before.

Special thanks are due to Michael Bell, perhaps the best bass we have had during my time as choirmaster, and also to Michael Alexander and Winthrop Brainerd, who have done the thankless task of keeping the music in order.

The following are members of the choir:

Prep Trebles: Abbot II, Bradley, Brown III, Carter I, Carter II, Davies, Fowler, Hanson, Harris I, Hutchins, Kales, Kingston, Langley II, MacDonald II, MacIntyre II, Norton Patriquin II, Rowat II, Stevenson.

Upper School Trebles: Blakely, Brown II, Cushing, Fieldhouse, Hastings, Langley I, Latter, Lucas, McEntyre I, Newman, Patriquin I, Yuile II.

Altos: Bell II, Collyer I, Freeborough, MacCulloch I, Mitchell I, Peck, Rowat I, Sharp II.

Tenors: Mr. Seager, Bouchette, Brainerd, Cumyn, Kilgour, Kyrtsis, Lewis, McLagan, Miller II, Renaud, Sise.

Basses: Mr. Wilson, Alexander I, Alexander II, Bell I, Byers, Cruikshank, Gallop, Landsberg, Miller III, Vintcent.

Librarians: Alexander I, Brainerd.

Head of the Choir: Bell I.

Organist: Mr. Donald Patriquin.

CHAPEL NOTES

"Ad maiorem Dei gloriam." No words are more appropriate than these: "To the greater glory of God."

First they explain why each year there are so many to thank for all that is done to beautify our worship. It is God's work, the highest service that can be given. So this year again, more people than ever have striven to make our services dynamic, meaningful, and worthy: the altar servers, W. Brainerd, P. Gallop, D. Pollock, B. Vintcent, and in particular the Head Server, M. Byers; Miss M. Reyner looking after the choir robes, and Mrs. Brine the altar flowers; Miss Watson decorating the Church at Christmas time; Mr. Wilson and Mr. Seager in the Choir; Mr. Donald Patriquin at the organ leading us to new heights musically; and the many visiting preachers, but especially Dean Jellicoe and the Rev. L. Clarke of the University.

Yet these helpers do not need my thanks. They work "ad maiorem Dei gloriam," and "He who sees in secret will reward openly." I express my thanks, only to put on record that in no other School I know is there a greater interest, or desire to help. It has many facets. It ranges from the vigorous singing of the School in "Joyful, joyful, we adore Thee" to attendances at Holy Communion which more than once have numbered over a hundred.

How happy shall I be, therefore, when we can crystallize this enthusiasm into a tradition that is really ours, and a building of our own—a building which I hope will be equally worthy of the words "Ad maiorem Dei gloriam."

On Sunday May 12th, the following boys were confirmed by the Archbishop of Quebec: Francis Brown, Allen Christensen, William Lang, Crozier Lucas, David McLernon, John Newman, Paul Pidcock, John Sharp, John Turner, Arthur Yuile.

DEBATING SOCIETY

This year, the sixth in our "free society system," and the second in our bicameral society, was marked by an excellent standard of debate. Total membership was about 70. Officers for the year were: M. Bell, President-Chairman; P. Gallop, Vice-President; Senior Treasurer, N. Webster; Senior Secretaries, M. Byers and P. Cumyn; Junior Treasurer, M. Ayre; Junior Secretaries, R. Bell and J. Khazzam. Mr. Doheny stayed with us in his advisory capacity and helped us a great deal.

The debating year started on January 18th with the customary hat night. A very generous turn out resulted and 22 members from both houses spoke.

JUNIOR HOUSE

Debates held in the Junior House this year were: "Foreign investment in Canada should be limited." Speakers for the affirmative were: Clarke, Coolican, McLernon II, and Prescott II; for the negative: Gillespie II, Hanna II, MacEntyre, and Patriquin. The motion was a tie. "The twenty-first century is Canada's." Speakers were: for the affirmative, Ayre, Bell II, Gay, and Ross; for the negative, Khazzam II, Langley, Redpath, and Saykaly. The motion was carried.

SENIOR HOUSE

Debates in the Senior House were: "The striking power of labour unions should be limited." Speakers were: for the affirmative, Hambly, Koraen, Chonchol, and Baillie I; for the negative, Brainerd, Vintcent, Moseley, and Brown I. The motion was a tie.

For the two houses, there were three debates: the hat night, a debate on, "Men's fashions of today are sensible." For the affirmative, Cumyn, Bouchette, Owen, and Sise, spoke. Speaking for the negative were: Khazzam II, Gay, and Ayre. In preparation for the Triangle Debate at Ashbury against L.C.C., which L.C.C. won, "Britain and France were justified in their course of action at the Suez." Speaking for the affirmative were Hambly, Bell I, Brainerd, Miller III, and Brown I. For the negative, Bell II spoke. Bell I and Hambly were chosen to represent the School. Webster I represented the school at the Model United Nations at Plymouth, New Hampshire, as a representative for Greece.

The last meeting was closed with a vote of thanks to Mr. Doheny for his patronage.

"BEWARE THE IDES OF MARCH!"

THE PLAYERS' CLUB

Despite the opinions of a few esoteric literary critics, it is difficult to study Shakespeare satisfactorily and to have any understanding of his dramatic ability without seeing his plays performed on a stage. Few enough Canadians have the opportunity to see his plays; fewer still take advantage of the opportunity when it arises.

In the Michaelmas Term discussions about the possibility of the School's putting on The Pirates of Penzance (a possibility which was later so triumphantly realised), the Players' Club decided that its production should be a short one. After prolonged discussions, which wasted valuable rehearsal time, a one-and-a-half-hour performance of Julius Caesar, one of the plays in this year's Matriculation syllabus, was decided upon. It is not easy to cut down a full-length play to such a great extent, but it is hoped that the essence was retained and that continuity was not lost: Portia and some of the very minor characters were removed; the early and the closing scenes were drastically reduced; the more difficult speeches were either shortened or excised; but the murder of Caesar, the funeral speeches, and the quarrel between Brutus and Cassius were left almost completely intact.

As may be seen below, the play calls for a large cast, and, with the small numbers required for previous years' productions, very few experienced actors were available. The production lacked the smoothness which is a notable feature of the school's plays, but perhaps compensated for this by giving many unlikely people the opportunity to appear, if only momentarily, on a public stage.

For reasons of economy as much as in the cause of experimental theatre, the play was performed in 'modern,' neo-Fascist, Cadet Corps cum vacation costume. Winthrop Brainerd, a veritable Goring, hung with the medals of innumerable countries, was a fine figure of a potential megalomaniac until he subsided, jangling, down the stairway which had been precariously built out of examination tables.

The three principal roles were all filled by boys who were appearing with the Players' Club for the first time. Fred Wanklyn developed enormously in the part of Mark Antony, and delivered his funeral speech convincingly and with real feeling. Michael Byers overcame his early nervousness triumphantly and, as Brutus, provided by far the most sympathetic character in the play. David Pollock gave a very good performance as the shrewd and cynical Cassius who 'seldom smiles, and smiles in such a sort as if he mock'd himself.'

Among the minor characters, John McLernon did well as the churlish Casca, and he also did very valuable work as Stage Manager; Roger Bell threw himself energetically into the part of the 'peevish schoolboy,' Octavius Caesar; Alexander Kyrtis worked hard and successfully at the unenviable role of Calpurnia, the only woman in the play; Richard Freeborough courageously undertook the part of Lucius and sang his unaccompanied solo very effectively; David Coburn was good as Titinius; and the four leading Citizens were more than competent.

The stage was divided into two levels. The scenery was simple. For the scenes in Rome a number of pillars and arches were set up, with minor rearrangements to show changes of scene. The battlefield was indicated by a number of evergreen trees set up in front of the cyclorama. It was unfortunate that the unsteadiness of one of them should so successfully have distracted attention from the closing scenes of the play.

However, it is to be hoped that the performance gave some indication that Shakespeare is not just a writer, but a playwright; that those who study his plays in class may find them less of a mystery; and that, perhaps, Matriculation marks may be helped a little.

THE CAST:

Julius Caesar, W. Brainerd; Calpurnia, A. Kyrtis; Octavius, R. Bell; Marc Antony, F. Wanklyn; Lepidus, W. MacDonald; Publius, E. Coumantaros; Popilius, K. Lawson; Artemidorus, R. "LOOK! I DRAW A SWORD AGAINST CONSPIRATORS!"

THE PIRATES OF PENZANCE

LEFT, Top: Frederic (HENRY KNIGHT) discusses his future with Ruth (PETER MITCHELL) and the Pirate King (MICHAEL BELL) on the shore of 'A Rocky Cove on the Coast of Cornwall,' as executed by Mr. PETER LOCK. Middle: BRIAN VINCENT as the Major-General, backed by some of his daughters in costumes designed and made by Miss MARTHA WATSON. Bottom: The 'Hail Poetry' chorus, which won well-deserved encores.

RIGHT, Top: The Finale of Act I. Middle: In 'A Ruined Chapel by Moonlight' his daughters tell the Major-General to 'dry the glistening tear.' Bottom: Mabel (MRS. H. SENIOR) encourages the Sergeant of Police (ROBERT CRUIKSHANK) and his men—"Go, ye heroes, go to glory"!

LEFT, Top: The 'Paradox' trio; Frederic, centre, decides to be 'merciful' to the Pirate King and Ruth. Middle: 'A policeman's lot is not a happy one,' opines the Sergeant, and, Bottom, he is convinced of it as he hears that 'with stealthy step the pirates are approaching.' With the inimitable Constable Wilson on the right flank the Police choruses were more popular and comic than ever.

RIGHT, Top: 'Yes, the trees for very love wave their leafy arms above' the Major-General, who is 'so very incompletely dressed.' Middle: The Sergeant admits to the Pirate King, 'To gain a brief advantage you've contrived.' Bottom: The Finale of Act II; Frederic at last wins Mabel, and each pirate a daughter or two.

DIRECTION:

The Rev. H. Forster and Mr. Lewis Evans.

The Music and Librettos for this Opera were given to the School in memory of Mr. T. C. Brainerd.

THE CAMERA CLUB

The club had an encouraging turnout of some twenty members at the beginning of the year. The officers this year were: D. Hyman, President and R. Pitcher, Vice-President. The officers and Members of the Club would like to thank Mr. Moffat for his guidance and help throughout the year.

An exhibition of work by Club members was held in the Peter Holt Memorial Library in May. Mr. Charles Baudot of Sherbrooke kindly consented to criticise the work from the point of view of composition, lighting and dark-room technique. His remarks were most interesting and should be most helpful in improving our work.

Vodstrcil was given the award for the best novice in the exhibition and Gay for the best senior member.

W. BRAINERD, (Form C VII)

PRINTING CLUB

The Printing Club put forward an expansion programme this year and moved from its cramped quarters on the school's second floor to a more spacious apartment on the top floor, with the added luxury of a window. After the press had been laboriously transferred, after the equipment had been more-or-less arranged, and after a considerable amount of Magazine property (which had been carried away by mistake) had been returned, the club started setting up type for its first job of the year. This was the printing of a school Christmas card for limited circulation. Mr. Lock produced a drawing of School House from which a plate was made, and the resulting card was enthusiastically received.

The other important undertakings this year were the programmes for the Players' production of Julius Caesar and for the annual Inspection of the Cadet Corps. This is perhaps the most difficult job, as it calls for the printing of one colour on top of another.

The work of printing is painstaking and often monotonous, but there is a great deal of satisfaction in doing a job well; a great deal of time has been spent on the seemingly endless job of sorting type, and at present the Club is hampered chiefly by the need to replace the rollers on the Press, which are too worn to produce an even imprint.

This year's members included B. Hambly, H. Anvik, G. Fox, J. Meakins, J. Eberts, D. Coburn, B. Badger, M. Alexander and R. Bradshaw.

B. HAMBLY, (Form M VI)

THE FRENCH CLUB

The French Club was revived this year due to the interest shown by a number of boys and the assistance given by Messrs. Hall, Owen, Lock and Seager. During the first term, eight meetings were held on Sunday evenings in the Peter Holt Memorial Library and at each of the masters' residences. We take this opportunity of thanking Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Campbell (at whose home one meeting was held) and Miss Watson for the refreshments, and to the masters for the soft drinks they provided, which added greatly to the enjoyment of the evenings.

Activities included: listening to the complete recording in French of Bizet's opera, "Carmen"; impromptu speeches on a chosen topic; games involving the use of spoken

French; describing in French pictures shown to the members.

Unfortunately, only two meetings were held during the second term and none in the third, due to the pressure of School activities on the week-end.

Members included Penhale and Pollock of the VIIth Form; Hanna, McMaster and Conyers of the VIth Form; Vodstrcil, Sise and Kyrtis of the Vth Form; Setlakwe of the IVth Form and Lapierre of the IIIrd Form.

The members wish to express their appreciation of these meetings which they found instructive, amusing and interesting, and they hope that the interest that has been revived may be continued next year.

THE SIXTH FORM PLAY

On Saturday, May 4th, members of Matriculation Sixth performed the Ghost Scenes and the final Duel Scene from Hamlet in the English Drama Section of the Sherbrooke Youth Festival, winning first prize in competition with King's Hall, Compton, Stanstead College, and Princess Elizabeth High School, Magog.

The following were in the cast: J. Alexander as Francisco, D. Davidson as Bernardo, C. Moseley as Marcellus, W. Hambly as Horatio, J. Miller as the Ghost, B. Vincent as Hamlet, B. Walters as Osric, R. Miller as the King, D. Langley as the Queen, and M. McMaster as Laertes.

The play was directed by Mr. Evans, with Mr. Greaves in charge of make-up, and Mr. Wilson as instructor for the fencing. J. McLernon was Stage Manager, J. Eberts Electrician, and D. McNeill in charge of Sound Effects.

YOUTH FESTIVAL PRIZE WINNERS

As well as the Choir and the Sixth Form Play winning their sections of the Sherbrooke Youth Festival Competitions, the following won individual prizes: R. Brown won first prize for his treble solo; M. Rowat won third prize for piano; A. Kyrtis won first prize for a sonnet; D. Khazzam won third prize for an essay.

THE PETER HOLT MEMORIAL LIBRARY

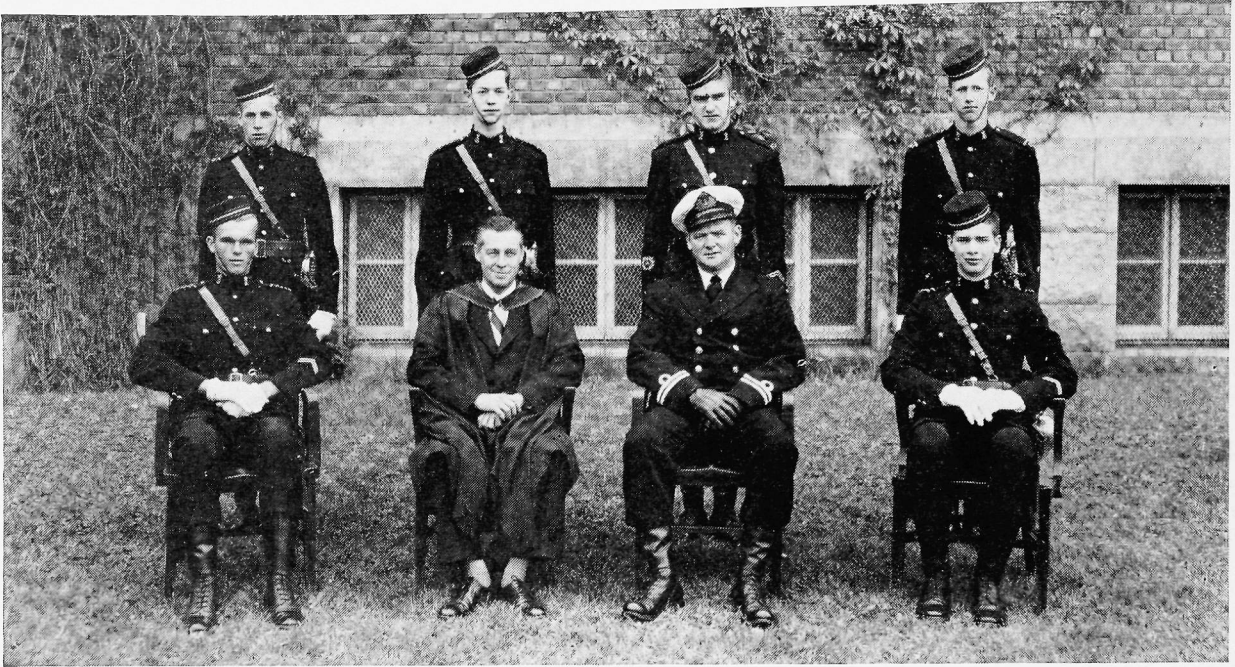

Librarians for the year 1956-57 were: Brian Vincent; Jack Miller; Michael Alexander, in charge of book repairs; John Alexander, Tony Pacaud; Henry Fielding.

About fifty books have been added to the Library in the course of the year. These include mainly novels with a few volumes on History and English Literature.

Peter Lock, Esq., held four art exhibits. These comprised: French Impressionism, Post-Impressionism, Van Gogh and Contemporary English.

The Library has been extensively used by the Debating Club, the French Club, for some classes and quite a great deal for afternoon study. The Librarians have the privilege of doing Evening Prep in the Library if they wish. Educational movies are shown in the Library.

Two operas have been added to the music collection: Bizet's Carmen and Gounod's Faust as well as some twelve LP records of selections of classical music.

CADET OFFICERS

CADET CORPS NOTES

No. 2 Bishop's College School Cadet Corps this year completed its ninety-sixth year of continuous service, and thirty-one parades were held for the purpose of drill and training in accordance with The Royal Canadian Army Cadets Training Programme for the year.

Appointments for the year were: Cadet Major, F. Wanklyn, C.O.; Cadet Captain, P. Gallop, 2 i/c; Cadet Lieutenants, R. Anderson, M. Bell, M. MacMaster, Platoon Officers. Cadet Company Sergeant Major, M. Byers; Cadet Staff Sergeant, D. Hyman; Cadet Quartermaster Sergeant, W. Brainerd. Other Cadet N.C.O.'s were: Cadet Sergeants, R. Bradshaw, P. Hyndman, S. MacCulloch, H. Millar, J. Penhale, T. Rankin, W. Sewell; Cadet Corporals; M. Ayre, B. Badger, D. Coburn, G. Fox, T. Heslop, P. Johnston, P. McLagan, J. McLernon, R. Miller, D. Pollock, B. Sharp, N. Webster.

Lectures were given on subjects including Light Machine Gun, Map Reading, Rifle, and First Aid. An inter-platoon competition was held on the basis of results from written tests on lecture subjects, combined with points for attendance, general appearance, drill, and shooting. The competition was won by No. 2 Platoon, commanded by Cadet Lieutenant M. Bell.

All cadets fired standard qualification rifle targets. A high percentage obtained marksman ratings. The inter-platoon shooting competition was won this year by Headquarters, captained by D. Hyman.

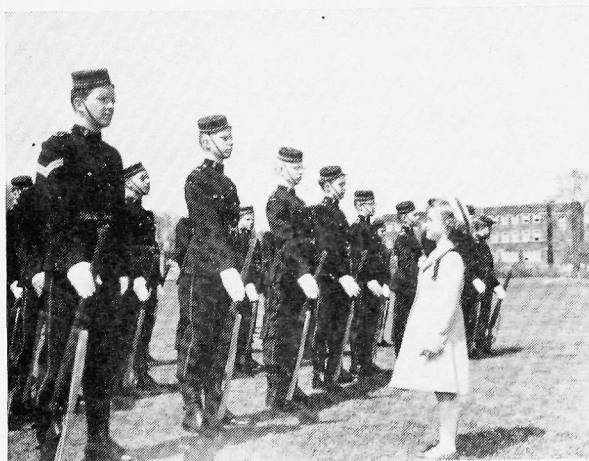

A special guard paraded to Lennoxville Cenotaph to take part in the annual Remembrance Day Services.

The Cadet Corps year ended with the annual Inspection held on May seventeenth. The Inspecting Officer was Colonel Duncan D. Campbell, C.D., Officer Commanding No. 10 Militia Group. The Corps was also honoured by the presence of two officers of the Third Battalion Black Watch (R.H.R.) of Montreal, our affiliated militia unit.

Special displays for the inspection were put on by several squads. A Light Machine Gun Squad trained by Corporal J. Hanna gave a short demonstration. A First Aid Squad trained by Sergeant R. Bradshaw gave a demonstration of the use of splints, bandaging, and handling of the wounded. The Preparatory School gave a short fencing demonstration under the direction of Mr. H. Senior. A large Gym Squad was made up of boys from the Upper and Preparatory Schools trained by Captain S. F. Abbot. They gave an especially good demonstration on the box horse and the mats. A Guard of specially selected Cadets carried out the changing of the colours trained by Mr. R. J. E. Greaves. Cadet Captain P. Gallop and Cadet Lieutenant M. Bell acted as Guard Commanders.

The Band had a most successful year, and the Bandsmen took an active part in the inter-platoon competition. Special Band training was supervised by Cadet Staff

Sergeant D. Hyman, Mr. J. Pratt, and Sergeant T. Rankin.

The following awards were made at the Inspection: As the best shot in the Cadet Corps, shooting D.C.R.A. targets with standard 22" bore rifles, Cadet J. Hodgkin won the McA'Nulty Trophy; Best Recruit, Cadet W. Lang; Best Cadet, W. MacDonald; Most Efficient Cadet N.C.O., Staff Sergeant D. Hyman; Most Efficient Cadet in the Corps regardless of Rank, Cadet Major Wanklyn.

FOOTBALL FOREWORD

Taken as a whole, the school had another fine football season. With the return of only a few of last year's colours, the team was supplemented by a few newcomers and a substantial group of young, but enthusiastic members of the 1955 2nd Crease.

Under the able and devoted coaching of Captain Abbott, the team won six games as compared with three setbacks. In our annual game with Lower Canada College, we retained the Shirley Russell Trophy for the sixth consecutive time, winning 25 to 6. However, we again dropped the chance to regain the B.C.S. Old Boy's Trophy, by losing out in a two game total point series with Ashbury College of Ottawa, by a slim margin of three points. In the annual Thanksgiving Day game, B.C.S. routed Ashbury by a 34 to 13 count, but we suffered a disheartening 33 to 9 setback in the away return game.

The team was very well balanced, with a hard charging line of average weight, and a fast, well co-ordinated backfield. Our weakest point was probably the fact that we lacked depth on the all important bench. However, with the return of a large number of experienced men, the School can look forward to an exceptional team next year.

Most certainly, the team of '56 had desire and determination, most of which was instilled by the team's coach, Captain Abbot, and the Captain, Bob Anderson.

Under exceptional leadership, guidance, and training, the school had a team of which it was immensely proud.

THE CROSS-COUNTRY

For the second year, Fred Wanklyn of Chapman House won the Boswell Cup, emblematic of victor in the Senior race. His time of 28:32 was tops in the senior field. Anthony Fielding and Bob Anderson were second and third respectively. The Senior team shield was won by a well-balanced Smith House squad. Williams House placed second, followed by Chapman House and School House. In the Junior section of the event, John Redpath triumphed over a field of 47 runners. Jimmy Khazzam placed second, while David McEntyre came third. The Junior team trophy was captured by "K" dorm. "A" dorm, and "D" dorm were in the runners-up positions.

SQUASH TOURNAMENTS

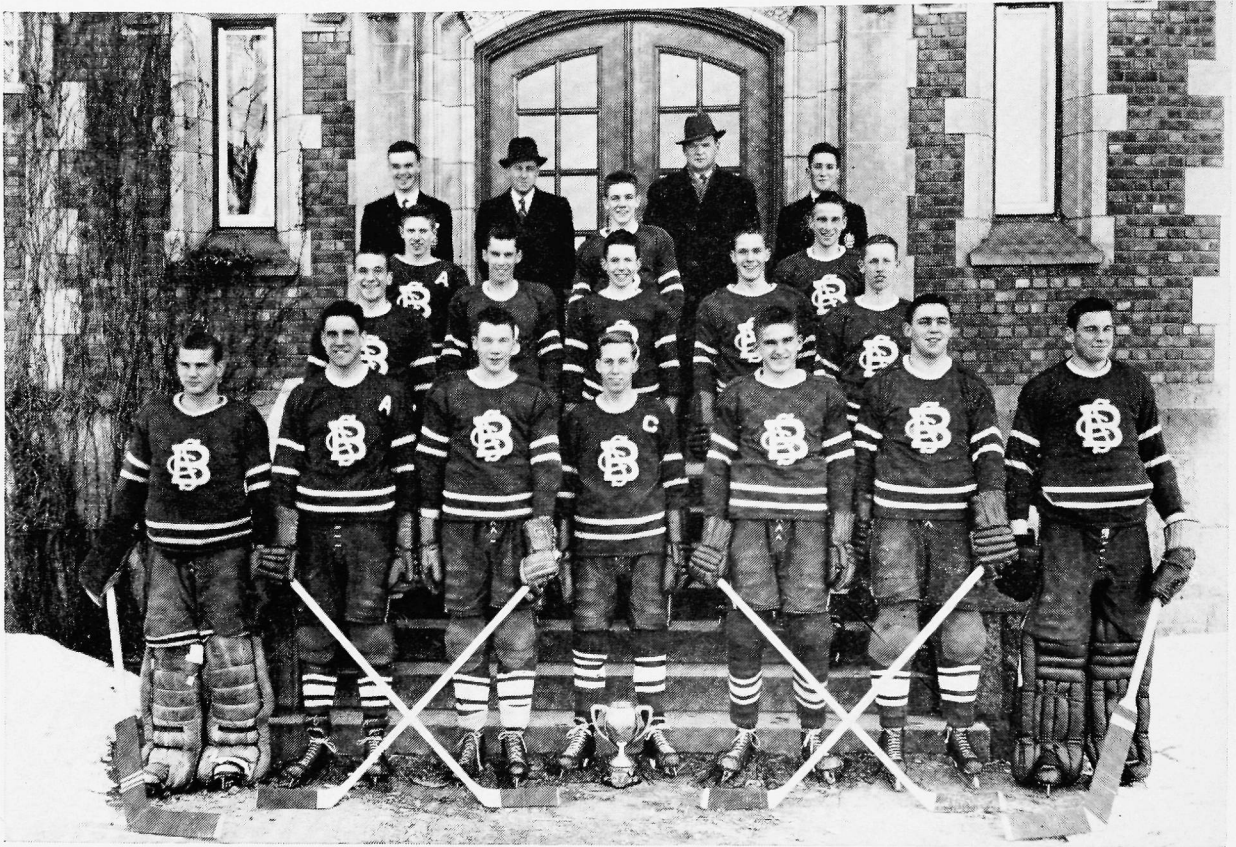

This year saw the school participate in two major tournaments.

In the annual Invitation Squash Tournament, Anthony LaFleur of the McGill University Squash team defeated J. Biddel, of the Montreal Squash and Badminton Club, to win.

In the annual school tournament, Michael McMaster defeated Peter Gallop to capture the Senior Tournament.

In the Junior section, Richard Hart, a new boy, defeated David McLernon to win the Junior section.

It was very pleasing to see such a large turnout for Squash, and for both tournaments, as the courts were in constant use. We wish to thank the Old Boys for their contribution and interest in making Squash possible and enjoyable.

HOCKEY FOREWORD

There was, indeed, "something old, something new," in First Team Hockey, this year of 1957. An ancient problem returned when a mere handful of Old Colours—four—laced and padded up for the season. Once again, Coach and players, with hard work and enthusiasm, put together a team that proved its supremacy in the Tri-school circuit, and tested itself against the very best opponents available. The innovations of the year were a visit to Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., where the School won over a highly-rated Indian Freshman team, and a spirited exhibition with Catholic High, the best team in Montreal Senior "A" hockey.

The Deerfield game was a goalies' nightmare, as two successive Deerfield backstoppers fell under a barrage of pucks. They will have a new rink to receive us in, come 1958, and will doubtless be much stronger.

The team had depth, in three complete forward lines, most of whom were scorers. Only a third of the forwards, however, were two-way skaters. The defencemen functioned better and better as they learned to cover, and some of the team's prettiest goals came from plays originating at the blue-line points when the rearguard moved up to pivot the power play. Goalkeeping chores were generally well handled by alternate netmen. The penalty list was unduly long, and, regrettably, contained more misconduct penalties than we had accumulated in all previous years. The team, as a whole, however, was not given to blowing its top, and we trust this fault will not be repeated.

The Gerald M. Wiggett Memorial Trophy for ability and good sportsmanship went to Peter Mitchell, whose effective, untiring effort and obvious enjoyment of the game reminded us of some of the best we have seen at the School.

Captain Abbott's first full season as coach was by no means a push-button job. That he was able to work a dozen new players into his system and produce successfully a championship team was, in itself, an achievement. Many of the games were played with the team short-handed, and we were thankful for the Coach's unusual ability to improvise his attack with the available material. Well done, Captain,—and carry on!

MINOR HOCKEY

After the glut of last year's success came famine, but few "hungry" players, and here we are, at scratch once more, with a tougher prospect ahead. Our teams in every section made the playoffs, but either hadn't the stuff or faltered carelessly when all-out effort was required.

Midgets, with most veterans removed by age, were reduced to two entries, although there were so many Bantams that we iced a second team, Hurons, who surprised everyone by their rugged determination. They were, perhaps, the only hungry team in the lot. Our best opposition in each group was, by contrast, eager and hustling. A vastly improved Optimist team came up off the ice to eliminate Iroquois PeeWees; Sherbrooke High's repeating Bantam Champions took nothing for granted but the need for constant plugging; East Angus, back after fifteen years' absence from the Q.M.H.A., brought ability and enthusiasm into the Midget section.

Practices, in general, lacked the spark essential to successful minor hockey, and too many boys appeared to be quite willing to coast along the triumphs, real or fancied, of former years.

There were, nevertheless, many good things to remember. The standard of clean, sportsmanlike play was high. We don't recall a more moving exhibition than that of Mohawks, twelve goals down to a powerful, heavier St. Pat's team, taking their bumps, sweating and exhausted, but saving that thirteenth goal, without a sign of bad temper! Abenakis, in their three games with Windsor, a new entry in Q.M.H.A., showed the type of hockey that has given B.C.S. its reputation in the Townships. Bantams bowed out with their best game of the year, and Hurons were full of spirit and drive, every game.

Minor Hockey is, meanwhile, steadily improving and growing in the Townships, and elsewhere, too, if we are to judge by the capable L.C.C. Bantam team which showed here against the Prep. The Townships section was the biggest ever, this year, and promises to be larger still, in 1958. We must make the best possible use of that early ice which is ours, from the very first day of another season.

SKI NOTES

Although skiing conditions were poor this year, the ski creases managed to get much valuable practice at the beginning of the season, practice that helped them considerably later on in the term in their ski meets. Mr. John Pratt returned again this year to coach the First Team, while Mr. Lock acted as manager; other creases were coached by Messrs. Evans, Greaves and Doheny.

The School started its competitive skiing over the weekend of February 9, when a junior ski team, coached by Mr. Lock, entered the School Boy meet at Ste. Marguerite's. The team, composed of Clarke, Eberts II, Lucas, Sise, White II, and Yuille II, placed fourth out of five schools; their best event was the cross country, where they came second.

The next week-end the Eastern Townships Championship and the Southern Canada Power Championship were both held at Hillcrest, the downhill being on Saturday, while the slalom was held on Sunday. Two teams from the school were entered in the E. T. Championship, and although no member from either team was spectacular, all ski-ed creditably and gained valuable experience. The Bishop's Ski Club, made up of skiers from both the school and the university, and defending champions of the S.C.P. Trophy, were defeated this year by a team from the Hillcrest Ski Club.

This year, B.C.S. was host to Ashbury and Lower Canada College in The Triangle Meet held on February 23 and 24. On Saturday, B.C.S. won both the slalom at Hillcrest and, in the afternoon at the School, the cross country, and though the School placed third the next day in the downhill, the team won the Louis Cochand Trophy for the first time since 1953. In the combined standings, Penhale was third, Rankin fifth, Bruce sixth, Moynan eighth, Anvik tenth, and Mongeau eleventh.

Though conditions were very poor, the Redbirds still managed to hold their ski meet at St. Sauveur on March 16. The six-man team from B.C.S. placed third in a field of nine, a considerable improvement over last year's showing. Anvik placed first in the cross country race, winning a gold 'Jack Rabbit' pin, the first member of a Bishop's team ever to do so. Silver 'Jack Rabbit' pins were awarded to Anvik and Penhale, but since both had won pins previously, neither was eligible for another.

First Team Colours were awarded to Penhale (Captain), Rankin (Vice-Captain), Bruce, Anvik, Mongeau, and Moynan, while Pollock and Pauly were given Second Team Colours. The 'Whittall' Cup was won by Penhale, Porteous Cups by Pollock and Pauly.

This past season can truthfully be called a successful one, and, with most of the members of the team returning, next year may well see B.C.S. with an even stronger team.

TRACK

On Saturday, May 25th the School Track Team took part in the Eastern Townships Interscholastic Track and Field Meet in Sherbrooke, and gained 160 points, the highest any team has ever made in this meet, to beat the entries from seventeen other schools, and win the Skinner Trophy.

In the Junior Division, in the 100 yards, 2nd Hamilton, 3rd Chonchol; 220 yards, 2nd Chonchol, 3rd Landsberg; 440 yards, 1st Hamilton, 2nd Wanklyn; 880 yards, 1st Wanklyn; Broad Jump, 2nd Wanklyn; High Jump, 2nd Fox; Discus, 2nd McCulloch, 3rd Alexander II; Medley Relay 1st.

In the Juvenile Division, 100 yards, 1st Johnston II; 220 yards, 1st Johnston II; 440 yards, 1st Alexander I, 3rd McLernon; 880 yards, 1st Fielding, 3rd Alexander I; Broad Jump, 1st Johnston II, 3rd McLernon; High Jump, 3rd Johnston II; Discus, 1st Badger; 880 yard Relay, 1st.

In the Midget Division, 100 yards, 3rd Eberts II; 220 yards, 3rd Eberts II; 880 yards, 2nd Redpath, 3rd Rowat; Shot Put, 2nd Ayre; 440 Yard Relay, 1st.

In the Bantam Division, 75 yards, 1st tied Bellm and Jamieson; 100 yards, 1st Jamieson, 3rd McLernon; Discus, 1st Jamieson; Shot Put, 1st Jamieson, 2nd Bellm; 220 Relay, 1st.

In the Pee wee Division, 50 yards, 1st Hutchins; 75 yards, 2nd Hutchins; Discus, 3rd Bellm; 220 Relay, 1st.

In the Open Mile, 1st Fielding, winning the Sam Abbott Trophy.

The Sherbrooke General Sports Commission Trophy for the highest individual aggregate scorer irrespective of class was won by K. Jamieson.

Though these marks have not been officially confirmed as we go to press, Grant Johnston in the Juvenile Division set the following records for the Meet: 100 yards, 10.1 seconds; Broad Jump, 20 feet, 8 inches; 220 yards, 23.7 seconds.

The team was coached by Captain Abbott.

H. PRESCOTT (Form M VI)

SPORTS DAY

A dry track, clear, cool weather, some superior conditioning and Captain Abbott's unique skill in training provided the ingredients for what may well have been the most successful Sports Day within memory at B.C.S. Eleven boys combined to break five school records, as the prize list shows.

The Senior 100 set the pace, as Hamilton and Wanklyn broke, and Chonchol tied, the 18-year-old record set by H. Molson in 1924, and equalled subsequently by F. Dale in 1932, D. Doheny in 1934, and D. Dodds in 1939.

Johnston II continued the destruction with new records in the Intermediate 100 and 220. Fielding, in a thrilling spectacle of heart, nerve and stamina, lowered by eight seconds the 33-year-old mile record of W. Harcourt, 1924. This was the School's oldest, unequalled track record.

Smith House, which in 1954 lowered the Senior House Relay time to 1'37 2/5'', teamed beautifully to establish a new mark of 1'35 1/2'' in a magnificent race against Williams, Chapman and School Houses,—a fitting climax to a fine meet.

This general assault on track records was the latest step of a consistent march toward better times and distances, led by Captain Abbott, and made by his track and field teams. Since his arrival in 1952-53, the Track Team has won the Eastern Townships Interscholastic Championship every year, and each year also, our own School records have tumbled. Fourteen times in that period, boys in the Upper School have bettered the records in our intra-mural competition, and the future seems well assured by the performances of our Juvenile, Bantam and Peewees in the current season, as they set new E. T. Interscholastic marks and tied one Dominion Juvenile record.

This unqualified success was not achieved by accident; candidates and coach trained early in the morning, in the full light of afternoon, and in the evening. The results were logical, but none the less magnificent.

THE OPEN BOOK

DOOLITTLE'S DIARY, 1956-57

September

- Mon. 10: Arrived at my new school and found myself assigned to Form VI C 3. I now believe what I have heard about the individual attention one gets in independent schools; I am the only one in the form.
- Tues. 11: Football started. The Headmaster remarked on poor condition of the field; the Coach remarked on the poor condition of the players.
- Thurs. 13: I have been gated for 'living up to my name'. I tried to explain that I was the great great great grandson of the founder's bachelor uncle, and promptly double-gated.
- Sat. 22: This was a tiring day; I was assigned to a cadet platoon and sent on a route march. I am still on it.
- Mon. 24: Back at school at last, and gated again for missing all week-end roll calls.
- Sat. 29: Football team beat Montreal High. Personally, I found that the 'M.H.S. ends' interfered with my game.

October

- Wed 3: The World Series began; all masters disappeared during the afternoon, muttering something about a Staff Meeting.
- Sat. 6 to Mon. 8: This was Thanksgiving Week-end. I am so glad I came to a nice quiet, lonely school in the country far from distractions of the city.
- Tues. 9: Thanksgiving.
- Thurs. 18: Won a part in the play 'Julius Caesar.' I am to be a man standing on the corner of the Via Flaminia and the Appian Way, waiting for a street car.
- Tues. 23: Invited to a neighbouring girls' school tomorrow to play football. I thought this sounded promising, but was informed that it was a different game, more social than athletic. I suppose that's why they call it 'Association Football'.
- Wed. 24: During said game I asked my Captain what I was supposed to be playing. He said 'Soccer.' I did; and was sent home.

November

- Sat. 24: Saw Grey Cup Game on a master's TV set: so that's what staff meetings are.
- Fri. 9: That girls' school again; this time the contest was called a 'formal.' Not being sure what was expected of me I took the precaution of looking the word up in the dictionary. It said, 'of the outward form, shape, appearance, arrangement, or external qualities, concerned with the form, not the matter, of reasoning; observant of forms, precise, prim, excessively regular or symmetrical, stiff, methodical.' I thought it wiser not to go.

December

- Thurs. 6: At prayers the Headmaster sayeth 'saith' is 'seth'; ah well—I expect to graduate before I am required to read the lesson.

- Wed. 19: Gating has been lifted for three weeks.

January

- Wed. 9: After all my effort to arrange and prolong the C.P.R. strike, I was sent back to school by C.N.R.

- Thurs. 10: Gating resumed, this time for answering 'I will' instead of 'Here' when my name was called in roll.

- Fri. 11: I have been cast as the Major-General's daughter that the family never mentions and keeps very much in the background, and as the rooster who proclaims the dawn in 'Hamlet.' I feel this proves my versatility, but hope I don't get mixed up on the nights.

- Fri. 12: A typical rehearsal tonight—the Pirate King appeared as the Ghost of Hamlet's Father in a tent near Sardinia.

- Fri. 18: Attended first meeting of the Debating Society. Because of the cold snap, Hat Night became Tuque Night.

- Sat. 19: By skipping all classes in my weak subjects I have finally outwitted the Colour Board, and the Headmaster complimented me at prayers with the words, 'Long time no C.'

- Thurs. 31: On the advice of Locker Room friends I went to prayers in ski clothes, and was gated again for suggestive insolence.

February

- Sat. 2: My talents recognized at last! Appointed Editor as school newspaper opened.

- Mon. 3: Squashed flat as newspaper folded.

- Thurs. 21: Ski holiday; a master proved it possible to ski both sides of a tree at once.

- Feb. 22: Headmaster announced at prayers that said master 'will not be able to take classes today. The boys will 'carry on,' as usual.'

March

- Fri. 1: Shakespeare Night on the School Stage; Birnam Wood came to Dunsinane on the Plains of Philippi.

- Tues. 19: I.Q. Tests given.

- Wed. 20: New Form established—VI C 6.

Wed. 27: They are getting tough; they have lifted my gating for only two weeks.

April

Wed. 10: Gating resumed.

Sun. 21: Easter morning; now even the eggs are on colour.

Sat. 27: 'The Pirates' closed after a run of three months and two days—three months' practice and two days' performance.

May

Fri. 17: Cadet Inspection; I won special award for 'Recruit who did most in his Platoon to enable another Platoon to win Inter-Platoon Competition.'

Sat. 18: The Dance; this 'individual attention' business can be carried too far.

Mon. 20: School authorities admitted defeat and enrolled my girl.

Tues. 21: French Oral Exam; examiner asked boys about events of the week-end.

Wed. 22: French Oral exams abruptly halted; examiner rumoured to have moved on to another school nearby.

June

Mon. 3: Received word my application accepted by South Hollywood Junior Coeducational College for Post-Juvenile Delinquents, conditional upon my passing matriculation. What is that?

Sat. 8: Closing, they called it, but it didn't.

Fri. 14 to So that's what they have been talking about

Wed. 26: all year!

TRIUMVIRATE, TIME, AMEN

The Sun sinks into the horizon,
The wave rolls back into the ocean
Whence it came.
And the Sun's fire is quenched
By vast and distant waters.
Then,
The black Calypse of night
Rolls over peaceful earth,
As tides cover sun-baked sands.

Stars hang suspended in the heavens,
Like rockets that have conquered gravity;
Poised,
In the blackness of the night,
Like surf in moonlight
When it rides the waves,
On its unending journey to inevitable shores.

The young Moon,
Is anchored in the dark depths of night,
Like a mighty Flagship,
In the midst of its mightier fleet.
Then,
As peaceably as it came,
The black Calypse of night rolls back,
Giving way,
To its more powerful brother,
Day.
The living light comes, warm air in its arms,
And warms the earth,
As warm waves warm cold sands.

And so, as Years,
Decades, and Centuries
Tread the unending path of Time,
So is night, with all its deadly darkness, followed by
Day, with all its living light.
The unchallenged power of the heavens, which for so long, reigned,
Almighty,
Has found its foe.
A foe with power to destroy
Millions in seconds, to end
All Progress and Science and Art—
Children of Time.
Our hopes lie in the lesson of 'Time and the Sinking Sun.'

Let us,
Look at thee—Triumvirate.
And thy lesson,
Let us
Learn— O Time.
And listen to
Thine anodyne monotony—AMEN.

WARREN HALE ESSAY

LEADERSHIP—A TRIBUTE

In surveying and analysing any world situation today, one of the most important considerations is the physical and mental health of the people. On this assumption, it is evident that medicine and education are two factors of prime importance. To choose between them is impossible, for they are inseparably linked and neither can exist without the other.

With this in mind it seems logical that we should pay a tribute to the men who look after us in these capacities, the educators and doctors of the world. Their influence upon our future is immense; their power to guide us wisely is vital; their leadership is invaluable.

Late last January, a plane lifted from the airport at Montreal. It bore one of the most amazing men of this era, a leader in more than one field. Dr. Wilder Penfield, scientist, surgeon, professor, lecturer, writer, administrator, and good-will ambassador, was on the opening leg of a six-week medical mission which was to take him and other Canadian doctors through England and on to lecture in India, Pakistan, and Ceylon, for the desire for knowledge overcomes all political frontiers. One need only glance at the impressive list of countries into which Dr. Penfield has set foot to realize that he does not let world politics stand as an obstacle in the pursuit of his work. Among other places, in the course of his career he studied in Britain, Spain, Germany, and the United States; he is an honorary member of learned societies in France, Czechoslovakia, Poland, and Estonia; he has lectured in Russia, China, and India.

This great sense of duty, this thirst for knowledge, is not new in Dr. Penfield. Though not always applied in the medical fields, everything with which he is connected, or has been connected, is blessed with his tremendous drive and his unwillingness to be satisfied with anything less than perfection.

Although he was born the son of a doctor, when he entered Princeton University he had no intention of going into the medicine profession. It was while there, after he had satisfied his first desire, to play college football, that his interest in medicine developed. The flame, once kindled in him, grew. He graduated from Princeton with a Bachelor of Literature degree and a determination to study medicine. A distinct aid in this pursuit was the Rhodes Scholarship awarded him for his all round activities, his prowess in athletics, his courage and initiative as evidenced by his efforts in the promotion of Woodrow Wilson for President, and his outstanding qualities of organization and leadership. With the Rhodes Scholarship, Dr. Penfield went to Oxford University where, in Sir Charles Sherrington and Sir William Osler, he was under the influence of two of the greatest teachers the medical profession could offer. After this came a period of studying under various specialists before he finally settled down at the Presbyterian Hospital in New York to begin his great research into the brain. Then, in 1928, already seeking more room to accommodate his growing staff and stock of samples, Dr. Penfield accepted Dr. Edward Archibald's invitation to move to Montreal.

At this time, scientists all over the world were involved in a great probe into the brain from which discoveries would come that would revolutionize medicine. Diseases of the brain, until that time thought unconquerable, were examined, and soon the faint ray of hope grew and light was shed upon mysteries that had baffled man throughout countless centuries.

There in Montreal, in 1934, largely owing to the perseverance of Dr. Penfield, was opened the Montreal Neurological Institute which through his efforts has become recognized as one of the best organized centres in the world for the treatment and study of disorders of the brain. There Penfield the scientist was to push forward to discoveries that would benefit mankind, while, at the same time, Penfield the surgeon would use the knowledge gained to cure sickness and disease. Penfield the professor and lecturer, meanwhile, was bearing the news of recently discovered cures to many distant lands, educating a new generation of doctors to carry on the research.

And now, at an age where most men look forward to spending their remaining years in peaceful retirement, Dr. Penfield is active in four different fields. In his research, he has made great progress in that great adventure, the exploring and charting of the brain. But more important than any individual achievements is the satisfaction of knowing that by his leadership he is also inspiring others to do their best. One tribute to the greatness of Dr. Penfield is contained in the words of a technician at the Institute who, when leaving after a long period of work there, said that if her work had been good it was because of two things: one was the inspiration of being part of a great adventure, the other, the knowledge that Dr. Penfield would accept nothing but the best.

Thus, ever since the day that he first decided that he wanted to study medicine, Dr. Penfield has persevered at his work, and his achievements are an example to us of what a man can do if he is but willing to exert himself.

"Unless a man works, he cannot find out what he is able to do."

POEMS BY B. VINTCENT (Form M VI)

Winner of the Kenneth Hugessen Prize for Creative Writing

TO YOUTH

Come—
 The dawn won't wait for you.
 God's golden gate—serene,
 The sun is shining through
 And fields are turning green.

Grasp—
 Your life as it flies past.
 Take hold while you are free.
 Its charm is not surpassed—
 The common things you see.

See—
 The jewelled day and sky,
 The flying lark and dove
 Who soar with ease so high,
 Are yours by right to love.

Go—
 Unthinking Youth! be done
 With sleep and start the climb
 Along your barren run,
 For there's so little time.

TO DESTINY

I climb the hill of life—so steep and bare—
 And hope that some day I may reach the height,
 But oft I wonder what is on that site—
 Perhaps mute Death and his sad backward stare,
 Or Wealth who guards his golden shrines with care,
 Or glowing Fame with proud and vain delight,
 Or yet Oblivion with his greedy bite
 And thirsty tongue to seize the idle heir.
 I hope for none of these when I shall seek;
 I want a higher hill, more barren yet,
 To climb, or if there is no higher peak—
 Sweet Bliss to hold me and dispel all threat—
 Or even Peace which stills the mind—so weak—
 When rich achievements come from long regret.

ON A RUSSIAN COMPOSER

With splendid glory, flowing melodies
 And crashing chords from your immortal mind
 Have stilled the troubled hearts of men for near
 A century. So poor in life, so rich
 In death. But has this sound of joy not pierced
 So oft thick walls of thought? How rich in life,
 In mirth, in love—a symphony in sound.
 But this is not the sphere of nations' wills,
 For if it were, we all should say, "Be gone,
 For you are not of us." But we do not.
 For is this not the sphere of pleasant sound?
 No curtain can arrest the flow of thought
 Through sound. How free of care is music's course,
 Not even yet explored unto its end
 And you with sparkling zest have left your name
 In bars of music, showing men what was.
 The telling test of time has passed your great
 And noble works. Who knows how long your themes
 Will last, for are they not like all the works
 Of men, just lying on the drifting sands
 Of time and swaying to and fro in time
 With man's oft changing whims—now full in view
 Of man's so loving eyes—now sinking to
 The lowest depths of his forgetfulness?
 How sad to think that you might come to this.
 But what you leave is your memorial—
 The great orchestral songs which form so much
 A part of our unending heritage.
 And you have made this world a kinder place
 In which to live and work, and is this not
 The whole and lasting reason why we live?

ENDING

Man is veiled in weary sleep.
 The trees have lost their warmth.
 The sparrow wings his way to twig-lined bed.
 The streams have felt the sweeping march
 Of night and soon lie down to rest.
 The time of prayer and darkness come
 To seal the fate of one more earthly day
 And yet, some will go on.

DESCENT

The heavy Lancaster rose and fell in uneven jerks, the powerful engines rumbling through the overcast, belching, fire. Eardrums popped as the bomber strained for altitude in order to get above the blizzard that buffeted the plane from all angles. Ice formed on the wings and weighed them down. The wind was behind them blowing N. N. W., but soon it would be blowing them sideways. The navigator pondered over his maps and scratched his head with his slide-rule. Behind the cabin in the shell of the bomber, seven silent men sat with their helmets tilted back. Jim Arthwright D.S.C., extracted a deck of Senior Service Cigarettes from his battle-dress and handed one to the man sitting beside him. Bob McGregor took the smoke and they lit up. These two men had joined the British commandos together in 1941, and had become inseparable friends after they had fallen in love with the same girl. Two years had elapsed since then, and now, battle-weary and fatigued, they had volunteered for another combat mission, for, like every commando, they felt they were invincible and didn't want to face the boredom of leave. To relieve the tension, McGregor began to think about what had to be done when he hit the ground.

If they calculate correctly, we land on the east side of the Viscole bridge. We meet at the river and float downstream to the bridges at Monbleu. That won't take long because the water is supposed to run swift. After the charges are set, we continue down the river until we see the skeleton of a bombed-out church. The helicopter will pick us up there at 0600 hours. It's 63 kilometers if we have to walk out, so let's hope we're on time. Tomorrow, Jim, we're on rotation, and Wednesday we'll be in York. Whoopee! I'm going to take her right from under your nose. . . We're turning to port-level again—must be on the approach path. Not long now. . .

Time dragged by. Finally the red light over the exit flashed on. Equipment was adjusted.

"See you at the river," Jim shouted in Bob's ear as he moved back to number five station. Bob nodded. There was a series of snaps as rip-cords were clipped to the guide line and veterans hauled down on them to check if they were securely fastened. The red light began to blink. The voice of the co-pilot crackled over the intercom.

"Two minutes. Jump when the green light comes on."

The bomb-bay doors dropped open and a draught of frigid air and snow was sucked into the already freezing belly of the ship. Puffs of black, acrid smoke drifted by as flak arched up and exploded about the plane. Time dragged on. The commandos stood motionless. The green light flashed on.

"Jump!"

The camouflaged men tumbled out, followed by the dinghies and explosives. Bob dropped through the opening as the co-pilot slapped him on the shoulder, fell, and was swept aft. His body plummeted forward, twisted, then the rip-cord was yanked free and the octagonal canopy of silk spilled out. In the middle of a somersault his rapid descent was arrested, snapping him upright, as the cloth billowed out. Suddenly he was swinging easily, dangling from the shroud lines. Out of the corner of his eye he saw a black smudge sail by, the parachute trailing behind in a zig-zag manner—unopened!

Good Lord! It's Jim! But he can't die. He's down, smashed to pieces—never had a chance—Roman Candles! Why, why, why! If it weren't for me he'd be home now. I had to come. How am I to face his parents, or Joan—God forbid! This blasted war. How many times have we jumped together—45? And now he's dead. . . . The ground's coming up fast. Damn, I'm being swept right down on the bridge. Adjust, adjust! Left ring, pull down—that's it. . . . no good. The darkness better cover me or I'm as good as dead. That sentry is right in oh, oh! Watch that machine gun, brother. . . . haven't seen me. . . . right into the river—great—I'll catch pneumonia before the night's over. . . . here I come, Jerry don't turn now. . . .

The wind carried him over the bridge, so low that his feet almost struck the steel railing. The sentry was so surprised that he just stood there, gaping. After he had been dragged for a short distance along the surface because of his speed, Bob's feet knifed into the stream with a resounding splash. When he came up, his teeth were chattering and the shock of the cold water had almost knocked him senseless. The current wrapped the parachute around him and dragged him under. A searchlight flicked past him, held him in its glare for a second, and then lost him. McGregor was swept under the bridge and rose hopelessly entangled in the lines.

His arm struck a slimy rock and his fingers groped and locked themselves in a small crack. He strained against the pull of the current and wriggled his numb body to safety. The waterlogged parachute sank lower and the stream plucked at the cloth. Bob's lungs gasped for breath and he choked on the water clogging his throat. Snow padded on the stone and the screaming wind tore at his ice-coated uniform. Suddenly there was a shout from the bridge as the yellow beam of the searchlight picked him up again. Instantaneously, two machine-guns pivoted towards him, and crimson flame darted in his direction, the shells tracing a weird pattern on the roaring, foam-capped waves as they sought him out. His frozen fingers clawed desperately at the harness-catch, but the wires were wound about his body in a confused mass. A bullet whined off the rock, inches from his head. Scared now, he rolled from his perch, deciding to chance escape by the river. He was instantly sucked into the current and the saturated chute pulled him under. The bullets ricocheted harmlessly behind and the searchlight lost him among the boulders. He flailed his arms, struggling to stay afloat, trying to make the current carry him toward shore, but it wouldn't. Pain seared his body as a jagged pinnacle of stone bit into his ribs, and he gasped in agony. The chute enveloped his tortured body, and again he was dragged under.

I've had it now. What a way to end the war. You were lucky, Jim, you died fast. . . . If only I could breathe—my chest—just one rock, that's all I ask. That bloody chute. . . I can't surface. They say the third time you never come up. Why didn't those gunners get me? At least, that would be a more warlike finish. I could die like this at home. What's Dad going to think? He'll be ashamed to admit how I died. This is it! Wait for me Jim, I said I'd be here. . .

RUSH HOUR

The notices that are read out
Between dessert and Grace
Tell me that I will have to be
In more than just one place.

In Play, in Camera Club I am
In Band I am involved;
In Choir, too, I must rehearse
A hymn that must be solved.

I listen to the notices,
And this is what they say:
"The Choir will meet up in the Gym,
And in Room 10 the Play;

"Photographers please stay behind,
And bring their cameras too;
The Band has something else in mind—
A tune that is brand new."

As soon as Houses are dismissed
The others go away,
But I am left to rush around
From Camera Club to Play.

When I have finished all my jobs
There's no time left for me—
The bell has just begun to ring
So—off to History!

A 'NOW' AFTER LEIGH HUNT

. . . now it is Saturday morning and the second Tutorial is on. Everyone is working hard—at his uniform. It is "blues" today. Now the basement is full of an atmosphere of "Brasso," leather polish, shoe whitener, and language which is unfit to print; now the officers are sipping their last few cups of coffee in the prefects' room, not thinking of the desperate new boys to whom they have assigned their uniforms. Now a panic-stricken youth in the basement cries out to the effect that his belt is missing. Now the one who has it is trying carefully to avoid him, and sneaks behind the lockers . . . Stealing? Gracious no! He'll give it back after the parade. Now the proud expression on a youth who stands back admiring his polished uniform changes to one of horror as a three-quarter-full tin of "Brasso" falls from the locker top upon him. Now the members of aristocracy come down from upstairs and complain that their uniforms should have been done sooner. Now the bell rings for mail call and those who have not done so put the finishing touches on their uniforms, and two start a small squabble as one of them has been using more than his cubic-foot area of space beside his locker. Now most of the Corps has definitely moved towards the gym to "fall in," and the last poor recruit, so as not to be late, rushes frantically to follow, with two left spats, both of which are on backwards . . .

NINETY YEARS AGO

A HISTORY OF THE B.C.S. CADET CORPS

In 1861, Captain Rawson, who lived in Lennoxville, took a warm interest in the school and founded "The Bishop's College Rifle Corps." The Rev. J. W. Williams was headmaster at the time, and Henry Slack became the first Captain.

The boys in the Corps were fitted with the ordinary rifle uniform—much to their dismay, as they were anxious to have a kind of Zouave uniform. The rifle uniform was dark green, faced with red, and had black buttons engraved with "Royal Canadian Rifles." The headdress was a round black forage cap with three narrow red stripes. When the Corps became a Company in the 53rd Regiment in Sherbrooke in 1866, this uniform was changed. The Captain at that time was W. A. Yule who later became Colonel of the Royal Scots Fusilier Guards. The Company was on the same level as other volunteer Corps, and the officers received their commissions signed by Lord Monck, the first Governor-General of the Dominion. The boys also were on the payroll. In 1864, the Corps was honoured by a visit from Lord Monck.

In 1866, the efficiency of the Corps was recognized and the boys were called out for active service during the First Fenian Raid. The orders were to guard the St. Francis and Massawippi bridges and to arrest all suspicious characters who could not give a satisfactory account of themselves. The only suspicious character they met who could not give a satisfactory account of herself was a stray cow, which was immediately shot. The Company's duty lasted a fortnight, and then it was learned that the Fenians had passed on to St. Albans, Vermont. The boys returned to school, congratulating themselves that they had been the cause of the enemy's change of plans. The service of the Corps in the Fenian raids earned for it the singular privilege of carrying battle colours.

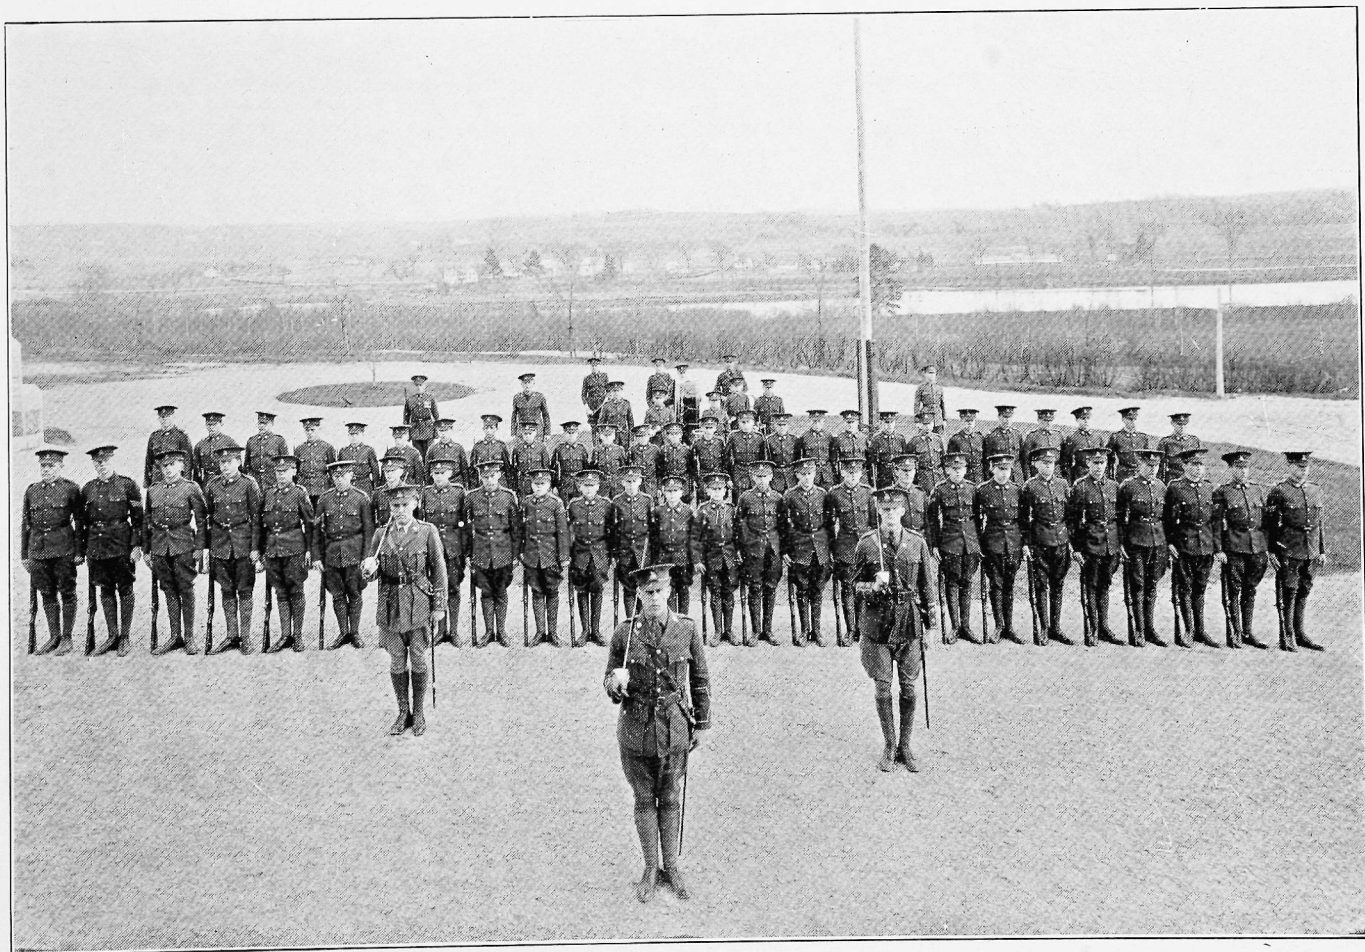

According to the B.C.S. Bulletin of November 1952, "In 1867, the Company was inspected in Sherbrooke by Lieutenant-Colonel O. Smith, who, while bestowing much praise upon the 53rd Regiment, said, 'In all my district, I have never seen a company so steady in the ranks, or which drilled better than the Bishop's College School Company.' The same year there was added to the Corps a first rate fife and drum band, which, according to the Montreal Gazette of June 26, 1868, 'added greatly to the enjoyment of the conversazione at the Convocation that year.'

An Old Boy, John H. Stotesbury, who entered the school at the end of the American Civil War, writes in a letter published in the 1930 issue of the Magazine: "While reminiscing, I wonder if there are any living members of the old Rifle Corps who remember our trip to Montreal to attend the funeral of D'Arcy McGee? It was in the winter and a very cold day; we had the honour of being placed at the head of the procession, and were stationed near a church at the entrance of what was called Petticoat Lane; next to us was a Company of Highlanders in their kilts and bare legs. Petticoat Lane was well named, for the way the wind howled through the lane was something awful. It's a wonder we did not freeze to death but not a whimper was heard from any of us. Referring again to the old Rifle Corps: during my time we were armed with old fashioned, smooth bore, muzzle loading rifles with paper cartridges which we tore with the teeth; the powder was then poured into the barrel, the bullet following. The rifle range was located some distance back of the school, and I remember that on one occasion after going through our rifle practice, a small boy appeared from behind the target and, on being asked what he was doing there, replied that he was looking for bullets."

In the spring of 1874, the school was destroyed by fire and the Company was not reorganized until the year 1879, when the Government made a new grant of arms and the Company was once more established by the headmaster, who, at this time, was Rev. P. C. Read. The new rifle issued was the Peabody, which proved to be a heavy and cumbersome weapon. Under the direction of Sergeant Hammon of "B" Battery, Quebec, the Company became officially known as a Cadet Corps. After the fire until 1891 there was little interest in the Corps, although it continued as best it could with neither uniforms nor officers.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

TWENTY YEARS AGO

In 1891 a second great fire swept the school, but the Corps was quickly reestablished in 1894 and since then has been increasing in efficiency and number.

During the closing years of the 19th century, the Corps drilled four times a week in the Trinity Term, and the uniform consisted of ordinary dark blue school coat and cap, white duck trousers, and regulation military gaiters, the total cost of which did not exceed six dollars. The Corps of 50 to 60 members was armed with the Martini-Henry Rifle and boasted a bicycle, signal and ambulance corps.

In 1901, the Corps was invited to act as part of the guard of honour during the visit of the Duke and Duchess of York, later to become King George V and Queen Mary. Four buglers of the Corps had the honour of presenting Her Royal Highness with a beautiful bearskin rug, the gift of the ladies of Sherbrooke.

In 1910, Sergeant Harvey took over the instruction of the Corps, followed by Sergeant Pyke in 1915, who, for the first time, introduced a fencing competition as part of the Corps' work.

On October 29, 1919, the Prince of Wales (now the Duke of Windsor) paid a quick visit to the school. On leaving, the Corps gave the Prince a typical school cheer, which both amused and pleased him. Valued souvenirs of his visit were the Prince's cigarette stubs picked up along the road where the car passed.

The following is a quotation from the 1952 Old Boys' Bulletin: "In 1924, the Cadet Corps, being pronounced the most efficient in the Montreal district, was awarded the Earl Grey Trophy for the first time. General Armstrong, in presenting it, said, 'The trophy, donated by Earl Grey, Governor-General of Canada from 1904-11, is given to the province having the largest number of enrolled Cadets on parade at the annual inspection in proportion to the school population. After determining which province it shall be awarded to, an inspection of the Cadet Corps of that province takes place, and the Corps having the best general efficiency is picked out as winner of the Trophy.' The School has won this coveted trophy in the following years: 1924, 1926, 1928, 1933, 1938, 1945.

In 1931, during the headmastership of Colonel C.G.M. Grier, the Cadet Corps changed from Khaki uniforms to blue uniforms with pill boxes, the design being based on that of the rifle corps uniform of Fenian days. On May 25-28 of the same year, the Cadet Corps' Special Squad gave a well received demonstration of arm and foot drill at the Royal Military Tournament in Montreal. On the Sunday, the whole Corps performed in the Montreal Garrison Church Service and Parade.

"The oldest Cadet Corps in Canada was linked with the Oldest Highland Regiment in the British Army last night when the affiliation of the Bishop's College School Cadet Corps with the Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment) of Canada was confirmed in joint parades of both units at the Champ de Mars and in the Black Watch Armoury on Bleury Street."

In these words, the Montreal Gazette of March 15, 1936, described an historic event when the Cadet Corps was formally affiliated with the Black Watch on March 14th, 1936.

Sergeant Major, later Lieutenant, W. Fisher instructed the Corps and developed its efficiency for a 30 year period, 1925-45. The school was sad to see him leave when he had to retire because of ill health. The school was without a full-time instructor between the years 1949-52; however, maintenance of the Corps was kept up by Mr. Smith of Sherbrooke, who was an ex-C.S.M. of the 1st Battalion Black Watch. It was remarked at the 1950 annual inspection that it was almost incredible to believe that such a high standard of efficiency could be attained in a two month period.

In September, 1952, former Director of Athletics at Stanstead College, Lieutenant S. F. Y. Abbott, R.C.N. (R) was appointed Cadet Corps instructor, and under his guidance the Corps looks forward to continuing success.

The School competes with all Protestant schools in Quebec (Western Area) for various trophies, among which are the Strathcona Cups for military efficiency, physical training, and military drill. The Corps has won the Strathcona Cup for military efficiency in the years 1936, 1937, 1938, 1939, 1940, 1941, 1953, 1956. The Corps has also won the Strathcona Cups for physical training and military drill four or five times each.

Captain R. G. Theriault, Cadet Training Officer, Quebec Command, W.Q.A., remarked at last year's inspection, "The ceremonial and training demonstrations presented by this Corps indicated a high degree of efficiency which should justify an above average grading in respect to many other Corps in the Western Quebec Area."

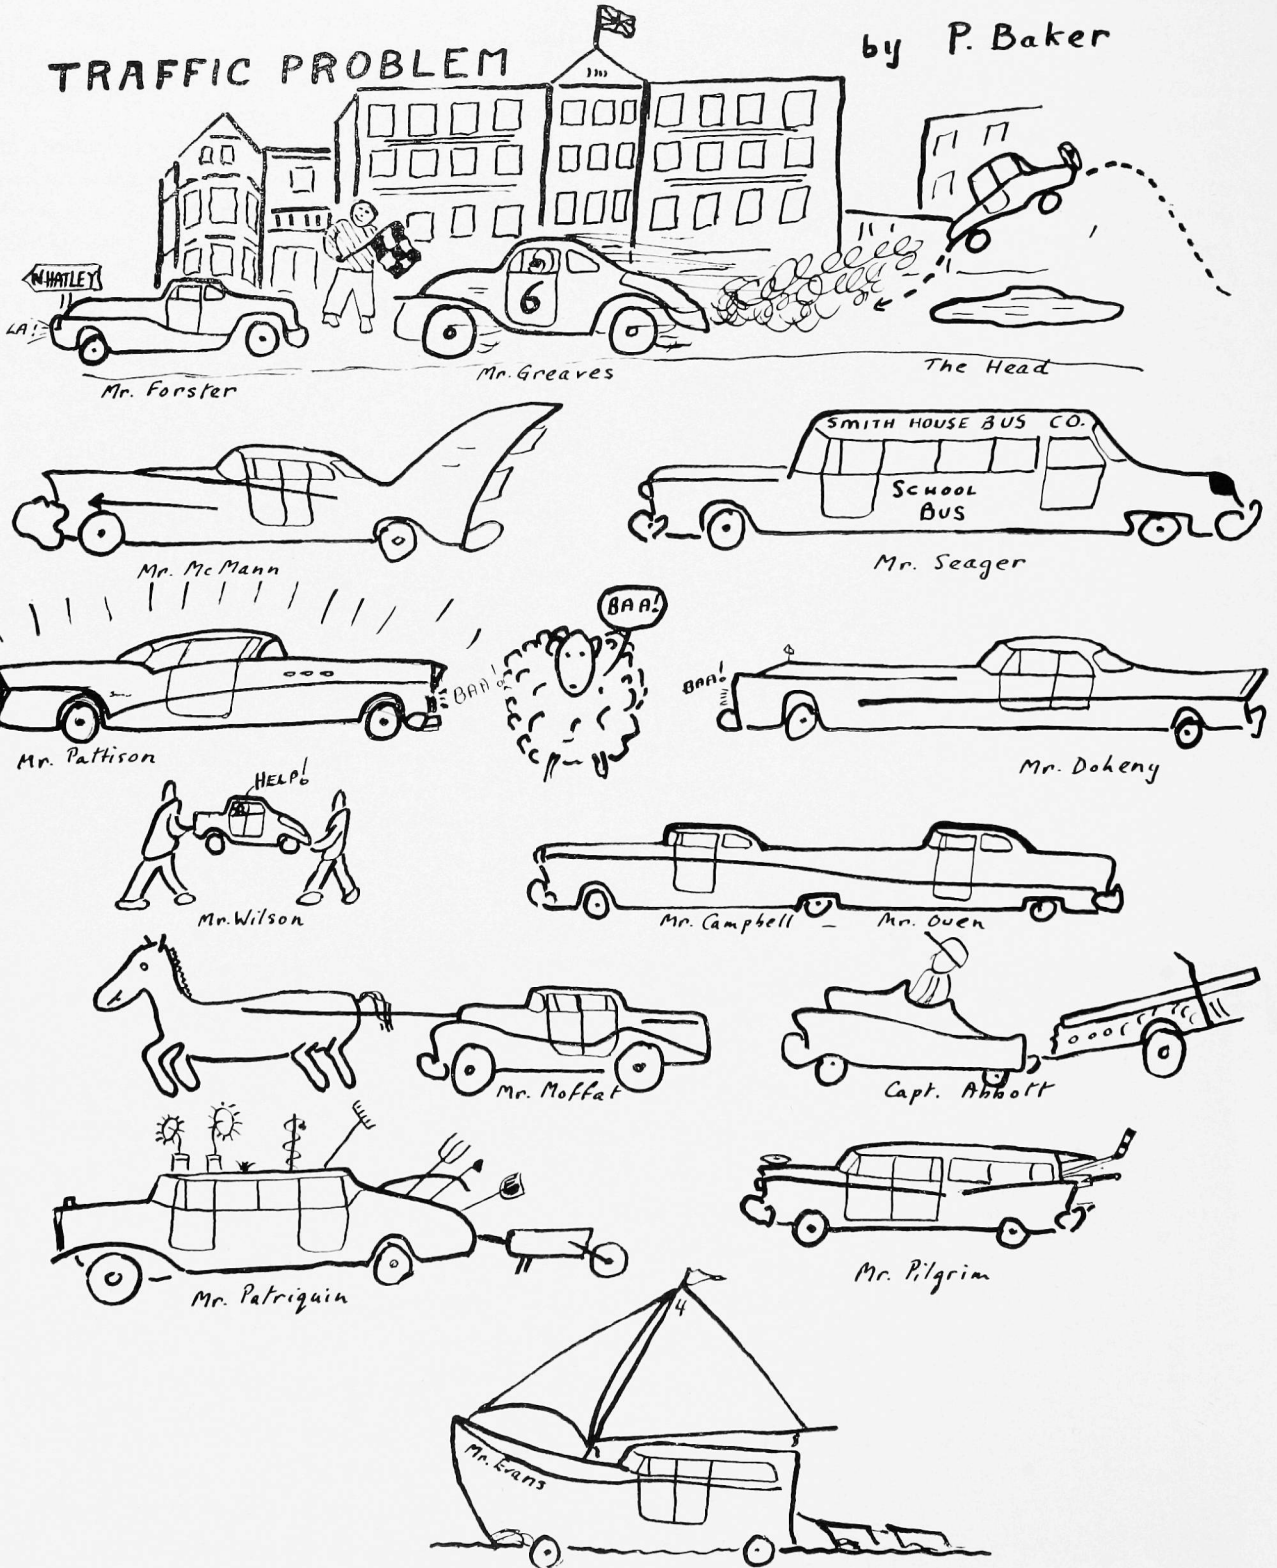

As the Corps approaches its 96th Birthday, we hope that the high standards of drill and training of the past will be continued in the future.

HOW GREAT A MATTER

It had not rained for many days in the area around Megantic, and pilot Jim Carver and his assistant Hank Cuthbert of the Aerial Forest Protection Base on Wolf Pond were getting a bit jumpy, as this was good weather for fires to start, even if it was a piece of glass magnifying the sun's rays.

Jim was busy looking after the seaplane's engine and gassing up to make ready for any emergency. Meanwhile Hank, who had been sleeping in the cabin for the past half hour, was suddenly woken up by the buzzer that he had rigged up on the two-way radio so that if one of them was outside, he would know someone was calling.

Hank quickly got up, went to the radio and said, "Aerial Forest Protection Base number seven, reading you loud and clear."

The voice of the caller blurted, "Hank, is that you?"

"Yes," replied Hank.

"Well, Ranger Number 127 has reported a thin ribbon of smoke quite near your district. Could you please investigate?"

"O.K.," said Hank.

After signing off, Hank went running out of the cabin, picking up a large packsack full of chemical fire fighting bombs on the way. "Jim," he yelled, "Headquarters wants us to go and investigate some smoke in District 127."

"Right, let's go," said Jim as he hopped into the plane.

When Hank reached the wharf, he dumped the packsack in the cockpit of the plane for Jim to stow away, while he untied the mooring rope that held the plane to the wharf. He then shouted above the engine's roar, "Let's go, Jim, the ropes are off," and climbed into the plane in his usual manner, shutting the cowl as soon as he was inside.

Soon the little plane was swooping over the tops of the trees that surrounded the lake, and was winging its way towards District 127, gaining altitude at the same time.

Hank was scanning the horizon with a powerful pair of binoculars, looking for the telltale light ribbon which would mean a fire, and suddenly he exclaimed, "There she is, Jim, a little to the east of the right wing!"

"Oh, yes" came the reply. "I see it now. We'd better get there quickly, because it looks worse."

When they got there, it was seen that Jim was right. The fire had spread over about one thousand acres, and was eating more as the minutes went by.

On getting over the fire, the heat sent them bouncing up to a further height, and Jim had a hard time getting the plane low enough to make the chemical bombs effective, but the heat was so bad that they finally had to retreat altogether for the moment. While on the retreat, Hank tried to radio into headquarters for help, but to his dismay, he found the radio dead and on close inspection he found that the transmitting tube had blown.

When they found that they had no alternative but to try to fight the fire themselves, Jim announced, "Well, Hank, you had better get the chemical bombs ready and press the button for that new spraying attachment that is on the nose, to keep the sparks from burning the fuselage of the plane, because we've got to go in."

"All right, I'll be ready in a second—O.K. let's go, Jim, good luck."

"Same to you. Here we go."

There was a high pitched whine as the plane came down in a shallow dive towards the outskirts of the fire, and suddenly a row of bombs came out of the bottom of the plane to land bursting at the edge of the inferno, checking it for a couple of minutes, but then it would just go on more slowly than before. The plane repeated this action a few more times, and the fire was just about to come to a halt, when the softly purring engine suddenly started to sputter.

Inside the plane, Hank noticed the sputtering first, and quickly said, "Hey, Jim, I think the engine is on the blink. Listen." By then, little wisps of smoke could be seen coming out of the engine casing.

Jim suddenly went white, but only for a second, as he had glimpsed a little dot of blue beneath them, just hidden by the dark smoke. "I think there is a lake down there. Let's hope so, because I'm taking her down." The plane quickly descended through the smoke, and to their relief they saw a small lake below them.

"It's going to be hard landing on this lake," said Jim, "and we might not even be able to get off. But we can't lose anything, even though it is in the path of the fire."

The plane had settled down in the water, and was quickly nearing the end of the lake that the fire had just reached, when Hank suddenly yelled, "Jim, turn to the right quick. It gets shallow right ahead."

Jim, acting quickly, steered the plane hard to the right, and just in time too, because as they turned, they could hear a slight scraping noise as the pontoons touched the bottom for a split second.

Soon, after a lot of paddling, they got the plane to the other end of the lake. They then both inspected the pontoons for any sign of damage, and found that there was only a slight scratch on the bottom of the left pontoon.

Jim then went up to the engine, and started stripping it down, but he had not got very far, when he noticed a lot of grit and dirt in the air cooling system. "Well," he said, "I guess that the smoke was so dirty that the cooler got plugged."

In five minutes, Jim had cleaned out the cooler and put the engine together. He then said, "I might as well try to start it now," and he went inside to push the starter button.

The starter ground twice, and there was a cough, a sputter and then a roar as the engine came to life. After listening for awhile, Jim said, "That was it. Listen to it purr just like a kitten." He was suddenly interrupted by a loud crackling noise, and then a splash followed by a hissing sound nearby.

"The fire is getting close," said Hank. We'd better get out of here fast. But how are we going to get off the lake?"

After thinking for awhile, Jim, who had been a pilot on an aircraft carrier during the war, suddenly came up with an idea. "I know. We can use the same method that they use on aircraft carriers, by holding the plane back while the engines go full, and suddenly letting it go! The heat would do the rest. But if we only had a rope, we could tie one end to a stump and the other to the pontoons.

"Good idea. I think I know where a rope might be," said Hank as he went towards the little trap door on the side of the plane, that went to the steering cables. When he reached it, he pulled open the door, and to Jim's surprise, pulled out a long length of rope.

"Holy cow! I had completely forgotten about that rope. Isn't it lucky one of us didn't take it out at the base? Well, let's get to work. You wade to that stump over there with one end of the rope, while I tie this end to the pontoon braces."

Hank did not take very long to wade over to the stump and tie the rope to it, and by the time he got back, Jim had finished tying his end to the pontoon braces.

"O.K.," said Jim, "Here is a knife. When I gun up the engine, count slowly to ten, cut the rope and climb into the cockpit as quickly as possible."

Jim then jumped into the plane, gunned up the engine, and waited for Hank to cut the rope.

Hank, as soon as the engine was gunned up, counted to ten very slowly, quickly cut the rope and jumped for the cockpit all in one motion. The plane surged forward so quickly that Hank almost fell into the water, but when he finally got a good grip on the edge of the cockpit, his wet clothes made it harder to climb in, but he finally made it and shut the cowl behind him.

By now, the plane was about twelve feet in the air, and nearing the end of the lake and right in front of them was a large tree, but just before they reached it, the lifting heat from the fire pushed the plane upwards, and to safety.

VAIN HOPE

Across again and back
While on the wall, the clock
The fleeting minutes taped.
Anxiety's approach
Recorded near the couch
By signs like butted smokes,
And twisted, figured scraps.

A mild or real success
Could be the start, and bless
Another life and yet
A failure might break all

That life—the life with awe
And wonderment conceived
To breathe a steady hope.

But now decision's near;
A flare of hope, a cheer
Uplifts the heart, the mind,
The soul, then drops them back
Like rotten goods, while at
The side, the pendulum
Swings on.

A FRIEND

What think you? No, not now,
 But later.
 What say you not to me,
 But after?
 Will your smile just now so pleasant
 Fade and you become—a lover
 Now a hater?

What will your candied tongue
 Now pratter?
 Did you but compliment
 To flatter?

Does your smiling face conceal
 Hatred, envy, malice for some Paltry matter?

What is a friend unless
 He be
 A true and honest friend
 To me,
 Loyal when a storm is brewing,—
 Trusting, sharing—till there's none as Strong as we?

REVERIE AT GRAND FORKS

As I looked out over what was now the junction of two murky rivers, I remembered that it had once been called Grand Forks. There is irony in the name now, but it once must have meant what it said. Yes, when there were only the nomadic Indians and the odd white settler, the joining of the two streams must have been a grand sight.

As I sat meditating just below the swirling confluence, under the shade of a tree whose leaves were already turning into the wonderful splendour of the St. Francis valley autumn, I dozed off. When I woke, I found myself in a secluded spot on the bank of the river. As my vision cleared, I looked down stream, for my eye had been attracted to some movement in that direction. Gazing over the clear water, I saw a canoe approaching. It was closely followed by another, and another. Soon a small fleet had arrived and put into shore directly opposite me. They unloaded with perfect precision and dragged their canoes up into the bush. The other side of the river seemed to be dense woodland, and the shore was mostly flat rocks. All their movements seemed well organized. Then, as I watched, I could hear them talking. One of them bawled over to his partner.

"Well, we sure learned those French Indians not to come raid us, and now we'll learn 'em not to chase us."

It all came to me in a flash. It was late October, 1759; Rogers' Rangers, for so they were, were retiring down the St. Francis valley after having completed a punitive raid on the village of the same name, at the end of the river. Now in full retreat, they were being harassed by Indians who were following. In order to prevent the Indians from catching right up, and having all the advantages, they were putting to practice a bold plan.

Within minutes, all but one canoe were out of sight and chopping began. The chopping ended as abruptly as it had started, and all was quiet. Then a party pushed out in the remaining canoe. They paddled swiftly over to the same side of the river as I was on, allowing some thing to trail out of the canoe as they came. For a short time there was a small commotion, which I was unable to see, slightly up-river from me.

Then all was quiet. A flight of geese went overhead, heading south, but there were no movements on either bank. I stared down river, waiting tensely for what was inevitable. As the sun neared the horizon, the first canoe came around the bend. It took what seemed an eternity for all the canoes to come into view, and it seemed as though the leading one was going to be allowed to pass, but suddenly it stopped. With the jar of the impact the occupants were thrown off balance. As I looked, I could see what had been the cause of the crash; a rope had been stretched taut over the water. From my side of the river, where the fewer men were, came a volley of fire and the leading canoe went down. The remainder of the canoes wheeled towards the opposite shore. Just before the advantage of the broadside was lost, the others, still unnoticed, let a murderous fire comb the nearly stationary targets. There were no prisoners taken and only one or two, who tried my side, managed to escape into the bush alive. When the Rangers left, and they did within five minutes of the last shot, I heard one say that they were going to spend the night at Little Forks.

I woke up with a start, my shirt clinging to my back in a cold sweat; the sun was hidden behind some clouds and it was raining gently. I hurried off on my way home and stopped in at a friend's house. He, seeing me wet and bedraggled, invited me in to dry my shirt in front of the living-room fire. As I stood in front of the fire with his dressing gown on, I noticed an old flintlock rifle and asked how he came by it.

"Well," he said, "my father found it somewhere on the river bank. He thinks it's an old New England model. . . ."

My mind was lost in thought, and I heard no more.

THE 1956 SOCCER SEASON

This year's Prep Soccer season was, on the whole, a very good one. Of the five games we played, we won four and regained the Wanstall Cup from Selwyn House. The first game was against Selwyn House on September 29th, and we won three to nothing.

Our second game with Selwyn House was in Montreal on October 22nd. The team journeyed to Montreal on Sunday night to be ready to play Monday afternoon. Again, it was a three to one victory for the Prep and secured for us the Wanstall Cup.

On October 17th, we went to King's Hall at Compton, for our annual game with the girls. Ladies' rules and scoring system were enforced, but that did not hold us back. Two points were given for a goal. Fortunately, we gained a goal, and thus won the game, two to nothing.

We were treated then to refreshments and a swim in the pool which was enjoyed as the day was very warm.

Stanstead came to play us on October 24th. In a very close game in which Stanstead did some scoring in the last five minutes of play, the visiting team defeated us three to two. Everyone took the loss in good spirit and with the idea that we would make sure to win the next game. On October 30th, the entire Prep loaded into a bus and went to Stanstead. It was our turn to win and we did, three to two.

This year the team was coached by Mr. Senior. We had great help from Sass Khazzam who was an excellent goalie. We also had an enthusiastic cheering section led by cheer leader Robert Fowler.

THE PREP'S HOCKEY SEASON

Hockey started the first week in November this year. After skating around the first week or two to loosen up, we were then divided into three teams, the Senecas, the Iroquois, and the Micmacs. The Senecas played in the Bantam League while the other two teams were in the Pee Wee League.

Only one game was played in the first term, the Prep First Team, composed of Senecas and Iroquois, against the Lennoxville Boy Scouts. It proved to be a close game with the Lennoxville team winning 6 to 5. The season really got under way the second term with the Prep First Team beating Selwyn House 6 to 1 at Montreal.

We secured a second victory against Selwyn House when they came to Bishop's to play.

Against the Lower Canada College team, we did not have such good luck. On January 26th we played in Montreal where we lost 6 to 2 to L.C.C. Again when L.C.C. came to Bishop's, the visiting team defeated us and took the Adelard Raymond Trophy from the Prep.

Full colours for hockey were awarded to Jessop, Abbott, Carter, Mitchell, Pirie II, Shaughnessy, Kenny and Khazzam. Pee Wee colours went to Abbott, Mitchell, Shaughnessy, MacIntyre, Hutchins, and Langley.

THE SENECAS

Captained by Peter Jessop, the Senecas had a busy season playing 10 games, of which they won three and lost seven. The team had bad luck in weather for they never got a chance to play in either Lennoxville or Sherbrooke. Each time the games were scheduled, it became very sunny and warm; the rinks melted, and the games had to be cancelled. Mr. Williams was the coach.

THE IROQUOIS

The Iroquois did quite well in the season as a whole, but they had bad luck at the end of the season which is the time they could have done without it. They won all their games until the semi-finals when the team suffered a lapse and failed to get into the finals. The captain,

Michael Harris, broke his leg skiing, and was succeeded by Darrell Abbott. Stephen MacIntyre and Patrick Shaughnessy were assistants. The team was coached by Col. Brine.

THE MICMACS

The Micmacs played eight games. They had one victory against Lennoxville B Team (5 to 0). Jeffrey

Harris was the captain of the team which was coached by Mr. Senior.

THE PREP SKI HOLIDAY

Our 1957 Ski Holiday proved to be a beautiful day with the sun shining down on the white, glistening snow. We got up at the usual time, but instead of getting into our work clothes ready for classes, we put on our ski togs. After breakfast, we had a little time to get our skis into shape and wax them.

Rather than going straight to Hillcrest, we had a cross country. The winner was Harris II with Hamy Carter a close second. We filled in the short time before lunch by practising on the ski hill at the back of the Prep.

With a hot lunch under our belts and our skis over our shoulders, we boarded the buses and set off for Hillcrest. The only casualty of the morning cross country was Graeme Ross's ski harness, which snapped off so that he was not able to join the queue awaiting Colonel Brine's okay signal before dashing for the ski tow.

Every one had many turns on the tow and many spills on the hills, but when the time arrived for the return trip, all were accounted for safe and sound. No one complained of early lights out that night for we were all happily sleepy.

THE 1957 PREP BOXING SEASON

The boxing season started in the second term when the preliminary and elimination bouts were held. The semi-finals of March 14th were followed by the Third Annual Boxing Tournament on March 17th in the gym.

Everyone in the Prep participated in this exciting event, either as one of the twenty boxers, four ushers, two whips, four seconds, announcer, or as a member of the audience. Bouts were fought for five different championships, fly-weight, feather-weight, bantam-weight, middle-weight, and heavy-weight.

In the fly-weight bout, Kirk MacCulloch was victorious over Kenneth Rice. In the feather-weight class, six boxers competed, the majority of whom were new to boxing. The final fight of this weight was won by Bruce Davies, but Peter Kingston showed great skilfulness and wariness against the champion.

The bantam-weights included twelve boxers. When semi-finals were over, John Norton had defeated John Langley while Patrick Shaughnessy beat Peter Crawford. In the finals, Norton defeated Shaughnessy.

The champion of the middle-weights was Peter Hutchins. In the semi-finals, he boxed against Stephen MacIntyre, and in the finals he beat Carter I.

The heavy-weight contest was contested by Ward Hanson and Colin Kenny, with the latter gaining the championship in a good bout.

The Prep Boxing Team are grateful to Captain Abbott for all his help in coaching them for the tournament.

Cricket in the Prep is definitely flourishing and it is regretted by nearly all that the season for this game is so short. We were lucky this year in having a team of players of fairly even ability and, therefore, with a tail that was able to give a good account of itself when the need arose. On 4th May we visited Ashbury and won that game by 81 runs, being largely helped by a stirring 65 from Mitchell and a bowling achievement of 5 wickets for 9 runs by Michael Harris. Ashbury visited us on 11th May and the game was much closer but our number 10 batsman, Shaughnessy, came to the rescue with a useful score of 17. The cricket matches of 18th May are reported separately in this issue; the Fathers game over the past four years and now the addition of the Mothers versus the 2nd Crease do much to keep the interest in Cricket at a lively pitch and we are much indebted to all those who came to play. At the time of going to press the Prep have one more match to play, this being against Sedbergh School from Montebello and played on the L.C.C. grounds in Montreal. N.B.—The Prep won this match. (Ed.)

EVENTS ON SATURDAY, MAY 18th

Saturday, 18th May was a big day for the Prep; in addition to our annual Fathers versus Sons game we also played a Mothers versus 2nd Cricket crease game.

It was a beautiful day when we got up that morning and there was a great buzz of cheerful voices. Everyone was excited because we all had a part to play in this great day. After the first period of morning school the boys who were to play in the match against the Mothers changed into their cricket clothes. School ended at 10.20 A.M. and we all went out to watch the game. The Mothers, many of whom had never even seen a game of cricket, did very well and scored a total of 30 runs; Mrs. Jessop was top scorer with 6 runs. Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Evans also figured in the scoring. When the boys got up to bat the wind started to blow quite hard and the Mothers had a definite disadvantage which they gamely overcame. This match ended in a victory for the boys by eight wickets. We are very indebted to the Mothers for their very sporting effort in turning out to play against us and we all hope that this will become an annual fixture.

After the Mothers game we went inside and had a delicious lunch after which the first team were to play the Fathers XI. This game has been held annually for four years and each time it has been a great success. Our team was a little scared at playing against Doctor Harris, a cricket blue, who was to play against us once more and we were greatly relieved when Willie Mitchell bowled Doctor Harris after he had scored 2 runs. Then Mr. McLernon got up to bat and we soon found out that he was an excellent batsman even under the handicap of batting left handed and he made 42 runs the top score of the day. The Fathers were all out for 61 runs. The Prep team got off to a bad start with four wickets down for only 9 runs and our leading batsman, Willie Mitchell, out for a duck. However good work on the part of Richard Brown and Darrell Abbott saved the boys from defeat and stumps were drawn at 5.30 P.M. with the score at 37 for 8 wickets. Thus the boys retained the cup by virtue of a drawn game. In the course of this game we all enjoyed the interval when guests and boys had tea and refreshments kindly arranged for by Colonel and Mrs. Brine. We were all very sorry when towards the end of the game Mr. Hart was unlucky enough to break his leg.

The big day for us all was over and it was a greater success than ever before and we were all quite happy about the way it went.

P. SHAUGHNESSY AND S. MACINTYRE

FOUR YEARS IN THE PREP

I have just completed four years in the Prep and next year I will go on to the Upper School.

When I look back on those four years I realize what a lot they have done for me, and the many things I have learnt from the classroom sessions.

I have learned "to take it," whatever "it" may be. When I first came I did not get along very well with other boys. I soon learned to do so. We are closely united in a small community life and Col. Brine says each year, "There are no 'new' boys here," and we are made to feel at once that we are at home with the others.

In our work and play we are taught to take it as good sports and with good spirits whether we win or lose.

We are taught the meaning of truthfulness, and to own up if we have done wrong, to be kind to others, especially those who are not as fortunate as we are, or who are unhappy or homesick at first. We are also taught that to "squeal" on another boy who has done wrong is mean.

There are boys from all parts of Canada and other countries here which means we get a chance to understand them and to learn something from them, and to learn something about them and their countries.

As we live here in a big family we get to know the masters and we feel confident that if we need help not only in our work but if we are in any trouble, a master will help us as far as he can.

There is one main reason for being sent to B.C.S. Prep. This is work. In the classroom we are under direct supervision of the master taking the class. There are fewer boys in the Prep than in one average class in a public school and this means we can learn far more, as the master can spend more time with each of us. Colours are awarded for our effort in work. Gold is for Excellent work and it is every boy's dream and hope to get a Gold. Green plus or minus is awarded for steady and satisfactory work. Yellow is a warning for a slip and if you do not pull up you will be on extra work. Red means you are on extra work.

After work comes play, and there are many games played. Our autumn sport is Soccer. Here we are divided up into creases and the Prep team is picked from the first. When the Prep team is playing an away game and the news of a win comes, it boosts the spirit of the Prep immensely.

As we go through the year we come to Hockey. Here, instead of creases, we are divided into teams, the Senecas, Iroquois and Micmacs. The Prep team is picked from the Senecas and Iroquois. Many games are played, either league games or with other schools. We are all very pleased that we won the Eastern Townships Q.A.H.A. Pee Wee Championship in 1955-56 after being defeated in the finals by one goal throughout three years. We also ski, and each year we have a whole day at Hillcrest, which is great fun.

We now come to the summer sports. The one which has priority is Cricket. Here again we are divided into creases and the first crease represents the Prep with another team. We have been fortunate in winning many matches. Col. Brine organized a Father-Son cricket match and it is always very interesting and exciting. This year the Mothers played the second crease.

In Track and Field we compete in the E. T. Track Meet annually held in Sherbrooke.

In the Prep we have added the Junior Olympics which include Hockey, Ice racing, Skiing, Track and Field. Fencing and Archery are also coming along with great speed and also Boxing. This year the third annual Prep Boxing Tournament was held. This was organized by Captain Abbott in 1954. This gives us a sense of responsibility. This is another thing we learn—Responsibility. However, the play is not all organized with School activities. There are three main free afternoons each week and a bicycle trip is held, as well as firecrackers, supper out and a big bonfire on Victoria Day

I think that because of the good manners and discipline we are taught, we are able to work together as a team and take correction with a good spirit. I truly believe that the Prep manners and discipline are something to be proud of.

I know that B.C.S. Prep has done me a lot of good and will do so for any other boy who is to come here. I am truly sorry to leave it and I am grateful for the help and training that I have had throughout my four years here.

THE SEA

The sea is ever so deep and blue,
It comes in rolling waves,
It hides old pirate treasure ships,
A road to riches it paves.

As the sea dances along the beach,
It makes formations galore;
There are many chests of plunder
Along the ocean floor!

The sea has foam upon the wave,
As it rushes t'ward the rocks;
It capers and dances and crashes down,
At land's front door it knocks.

THE BRAVEST DOG THAT EVER LIVED

It was a sunny afternoon when my dog Musty and I were walking over to the barn. Musty was eager to help in any way he could; it was our fifteenth year together and we had been good companions. I was going to milk the cows which Musty had brought in from the pasture. After we finished the milking I got the brush, to go up into the pasture and brush my prize Brahma bull, but first we climbed up to Look-out Point, to look at the green pastures and the purple, snow-capped mountains in the west. We had seen them every day for fifteen years and we both felt as though we were part of them. Little did I know what my dog was going to do for me that day.

When we had climbed down the little rocky hill and when we arrived at the old wood fence, I made a note in my mind to put a new fence in.

I noticed my prize bull about one mile away under the big oak; the oak was my favourite tree with its big bushy leaves and huge branches, with all the leaves fluttering to the ground. We walked over to him slowly because he was very jumpy; he might charge.

A lone bird fluttered down and landed on the back of the Brahma, then bounced onto his eye. That was too much for the bull for he rose up and charged the bird, which just flew away. Then he kicked up his heels and started to charge us. I started to run but I fell with a sprained ankle and was helpless with 2000 lbs., of fighting fury coming at me. I looked at the mountains for the last time, when suddenly Musty jumped up and hit the bull in the nose. He held on while I dragged myself over to the fence. Musty hung on for one and a half hours but he was growing weaker, and just at that minute he let go. The bull ripped open his stomach with his horns. That was all I could bear; I picked up my shotgun from where I had laid it at the fence, and shot it into the air to scare the bull away and I went over to my dog. He looked at the hills for the last time then he passed away into the next world. I buried him and sold the farm and I'll always remember "The Bravest Dog That Ever Lived."

D. PRICE ('46-'50)

With the close of another School year, the Directors of the Association wish to thank all Old Boys who have contributed in any way to the success which the Association has enjoyed this past year. The degree of such success depends upon the number of members enrolled and, once more, Old Boys not yet members of the Association, are asked to enroll so that the aim of having 500 paid members may soon be reached. Payment of fees, $3.00 annually for the first ten years, $5.00 thereafter, $100.00 Life Membership, should be made to the Secretary-Treasurer, J. H. Gray, Esq., P.O. Box 3, Place d'Armes, Montreal.

P. Aird ('41-'44), after performing the duties of Secretary-Treasurer of the Association for the past five years, has relinquished this position to J. H. Gray ('45-'48), to whom we extend our best wishes. All Old Boys take this opportunity of thanking Pete for devoting so unselfishly his time and efforts in carrying out the duties connected with this position.

The following Old Boys have become Life Members in the Association during the past year or so:

D. G. Hobart ('45-'52); G. G. Howard ('39-'42); A. G. Hutchison ('43-'48); P. T. Molson ('35-'38); J. S. Taylor ('30-'38); Lt. Col. J. G. Ross ('09-'17); G. B. Seager ('43-'47); W. D. Scholes ('42-'48); J. A. Fuller ('40-'44); P. L. Douglas ('16-'20); W. J. Burt ('09-'18).

The Annual Meeting and Dinner of the Old Boys' Association took place at the Montreal Club, 215 St. James St., Montreal, on February 28th. Plans for a Dinner to be held in the Fall were left to the committee to arrange, and details and date to be announced later in the year.

Seated at the Head Table were: P. McEntyre ('27-'35), President of the Association; H. G. Norman, Esq., C.M.G., former Canadian Ambassador to Venezuela and presently President of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges, the Guest of Honour; the Headmaster; P. H. Gregory ('03-'05); H. C. MacDougall ('16-'22); Mr. Justice MacKinnon ('92-'96); G. G. Ryan ('15-'17); D. Doheny ('27-'34). Before introducing the Guest Speaker, the President spoke of the loss the School had sustained in the death of G. M. Wiggett ('07-'08). To perpetuate his memory and fine sense of sportsmanship, the Association donated a handsome trophy, to be known as the Gerald M. Wiggett Memorial Trophy, which was presented to the Headmaster and accepted by him on behalf of the School. The Trophy is a silver rose bowl on a square base, around which the winner's names will be inscribed on miniature silver shields and each winner will receive an appropriate personal award. The award will be made each year to the boy on the hockey team who, in the opinion of the Coach, has displayed sportsmanship and ability in the game. The guest speaker then showed coloured slides, depicting numerous phases and activities of life in Venezuela, and accompanied them with an interesting and humorous commentary. The Headmaster thanked Mr. Norman for his informative address, accepted the Gerald M. Wiggett Memorial Trophy with a deep sense of appreciation in knowing that his memory would thus be perpetuated at the School, spoke of the activities at the School this past term, and closed with the reminder that the School, founded long before Confederation, and enjoying through the years the reputation of being one of Canada's great schools, had to keep abreast of the times in keeping its physical equipment on a par with other great schools.

The 4th annual B.C.S. Invitation Squash Tournament, under the leadership of J. Churchill-Smith ('35-'39) and H. Hallward ('40-'44), took place at the School on March 9-10. Old Boys who took part were: J. Churchill-Smith ('35-'39), H. Hallward ('40-'44), H. Price ('42-'46) and T. Price ('44-'48). The School arrangements were undertaken by E. B. Pilgrim, Esq., Housemaster of Williams House, who took part in the tournament as well as the following boys: P. Gallop, M. McMaster, Hart 11, A. Pacaud and J. Alexander. The following, from outside Clubs completed the list of contestants: T. Lafleur (McGill), J. Biddell (Montreal), J. Prendergast (Montreal), D. Mathias (Montreal), Dr. J. Ross (Sherbrooke), J. Spencer (Montreal). T. Price ('44-'48), by defeating his brother Hartland ('42-'46), won the Consolation Tournament and Tony Lafleur won the Invitation Tournament by defeating J. Biddell. P. Price ('48-'54), was one of the scorers. Saturday night, G. A. Sharp ('23-'28), and J. Rankin ('24-'27), entertained at Hovey Manor, North Hatley, prior to the Dinner given there by the Old Boys whose guests included the above players and the Headmaster, Captain Abbott and E. B. Pilgrim.

UNVEILING CEREMONY

A portrait of the late Lt. Col. Bruce C. Hutchison ('06-'11), was unveiled by Mrs. Hutchison on April 14 in a ceremony at the 17th Duke of York's Royal Canadian Hussars Armoury in Montreal. Lt. Col. Hutchison joined the Hussars after the Armistice of World War 1 and obtained his majority in 1924. He later joined the reserve unit and commanded it through World War II. He was appointed Honorary Lt. Col. in May 1939. He was a descendant of Lt. Col. A. Ogilvie, who in 1837 commanded the original Montreal Cavalry, forerunners of the 17th Hussars. He enlisted in the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles at the outbreak of World War 1 and was commissioned in the Black Watch's 42nd Battalion while in France. He died on May 11, 1955. He was President of the Old Boys' Association in 1936-37.

RETIREMENT

Rear-Admiral R. E. S. Bidwell ('08-'10), Flag Officer, Atlantic Coast, for more than five years, will begin retirement leave in September after 42 years' service in the Royal Canadian Navy. He was born in Peterborough, England, and came to Canada as a child when his father, later to become Anglican Bishop of Ontario, was appointed Headmaster of the School.

CONGRATULATIONS

J. F. Meakins ('24-'29), B.A., M.A. (Cantab), M.D., F.R.C.P. (C), F.A.C.P., was promoted Assistant Professor (Faculty of Medicine) McGill University, September 1st, 1956.

C. D. Mitescu ('51-'54), 4th year engineering student, and P. R. Duffield ('52-'55), 3rd year engineering, have been selected for placement on the "dean's list" at McGill University in recognition of outstanding scholastic work during the previous session.

Egan Chambers ('36-'39), was appointed in November Montreal regional organizer on behalf of Davie Fulton, a candidate for the National Progressive Conservative party leadership.

P. B. Glassford ('44-'49), in December received his degree in the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants (McGill Licentiate).

R. H. Price ('06-'10), in December was appointed by the Federal Government a member of the National Battlefields Commission.

H. D. McGee ('46-'50), was appointed in January to the newly formed Carpet Division of Canadian Celanese Ltd. He is widely known in the floor covering trade, having been the eastern representative of K. B. McKellar & Co., for six years.

Hon. G. C. Marler and Mrs. Marler ('14-'17), were guests of honor at a Buffet Dansant given by the Women's Liberal Association of St. Antoine, Westmount, in the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, on January 23.

Early in December, over 700 members of the "Western Forestry and Conservation Association" met at the Empress Hotel in Victoria, B.C. Men from B.C., Alberta and seven Western United States were represented. At a Banquet held on Dec. 6th, at which over 725 were present, a plaque, bearing these words, "Lifelong Achievement in Forestry and Service to the Forest Industries," was presented to G. B. McLeod ('84-'87). The Association was organized in 1909 by 18 men, one of whom was Mr. McLeod, the sole survivor. Born in New Brunswick and educated in Quebec, he graduated from R.M.C. in 1891. Then he moved to Montana and went to work for the late A. B. Hammond. He has just retired as Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Hammond Lumber Company, after having served the Hammond interests for 65 years. Mr. McLeod is in his 87th year and plans to visit the School with his wife. We at the School await that visit with great pleasure—in the meantime, our heartiest congratulations for the award so deservedly earned and for the fine spirit he imparts, certainly an inspiration for us younger ones.

Egan Chambers ('36-'39), was named the Progressive Conservative candidate for St. Lawrence-St. George constituency, at a meeting held in the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, on January 10th, under the chairmanship of J. H. Price ('09-'15), President of the St. Lawrence-St. George Progressive Conservative Association.

L. Clark ('28-'31), was elected Vice-President of the Canadian Processors Association at a meeting held at the Seigneury Club at the end of January.

Awards from the Elizabeth T. Greenshields Foundation, set up two years ago by C. G. Greenshields ('97-'01), to two young French painters, were made in Paris early in February. They were made by Canadian Ambassador Jean Desy in the presence of Jacques Bordeneuve, Secretary of State for Arts and Letters of the French Government. The winners had been selected by a jury headed by Count Jean Pastre and Jacques Jaujard, French Director General of Arts and Letters. Since 1955 the Foundation has made grants to 10 artists from Canada, the U.S.A. and England, all now studying in Europe.

T. Porteous ('46-'50), was one of the two authors of "My Fur Lady," the Red and White Revue staged in Moyse Hall February 7-13 by McGill students. So successful was this production that a second presentation was made after the College exams were completed in May. Walter O'Hearn, theatre critic of the Montreal Star, highly praised the performances and rated them professional calibre.

J. A. Cross ('27-'35), has been appointed Assistant-General Sales Manager of Canada Iron Foundries at the Company's Head Office in Montreal.

M. H. Gordon ('53-'55), President of the University of New Brunswick Drama Society, was awarded the trophy for the best actor in the society's production of "Dangerous Corner" at the New Brunswick Regional Festival held in Bathurst in March. The UNB Society later received an invitation to compete in the Dominion Festival in Edmonton in May. The production of "Dangerous Corner" by J. B. Priestley won for the Society the Calvert Regional Trophy and the Lieutenant-Governor D. L. MacLaren Trophy, as well as the best actor and best actress awards, a cash prize, and lavish praise from the adjudicator, Cecil Bellamy, for perfect timing, costuming and the gradual build-up in the production.

George Hall ('16-'26) has been elected President of the Montreal Branch of the Bishop's University Alumni Association.

TRAVELLING TO LENNOXVILLE IN 1836

In the early days of the School, boys came from Montreal and Quebec by stage. Lieut. Col. Forsyth, speaking at the Bishop's College and School Annual Dinner on January 4, 1887, said: "More boys undoubtedly would have come to the School, but the expense and inconvenience of getting there in winter was very great. It took me three days to drive there, and that was in July 1843." The following account, found on the back of a newspaper clipping of 1836, gives an idea of the sort of journey the boys had to make to get to Lennoxville. The route described, by road or boat to Nicolet and by road along the St. Francis, was the main one from Quebec to Sherbrooke in those days.

"..... the British American Land Company's new establishment at Port St. Francis, in the parish of Nicolet, we put our sac de voyage in the Canadian steamer, which at 5 p.m. left the wharf on her upward trip and at 3 o'clock on the following morning had reached our point of disembarkation. Proceeding immediately to the small, but comfortable hotel kept by Mr. Jones, we found that the stage, which starts daily and goes through Sherbrooke in one day, was ready but delayed its departure until the arrival of the steamer from Montreal, so as to give passengers from both cities going to Sherbrooke, the opportunity of proceeding on their journey without any needless detention at Port St. Francis. The steamer from above did not come in till 6 o'clock, on the morning we speak of, and her arrival proved a blank, so far as stage passengers were concerned; the driver then brought his carriage to the door, a covered stage with a pair of smart nags, and whisked myself and one companion, at a brisk pace to La Baie, distance 12 miles, where the stage changes horses and the passengers stop for breakfast. As we make these notes for the use of those who may wish to visit the Townships, we must state that the Inn at this place boasts of no first rate accommodation, and those who have delicate appetites, or are in any way fastidious about "creature comforts," will do well to carry with them a loaf of good bread from Port St. Francis, rather than trust to that which is manufactured at St. Antoine in La Baie du Febvre. We will here go a little ahead in our journey, and observe that for Canada, the stage travels at a fair rate, for having left Port St. Francis at 6 o'clock in the morning, we reached Sherbrooke, a distance of 87 miles, shortly after nine in the evening of the same day, so that in 28 hours from the start of our leaving Quebec we were in the Inn at this lately inaccessible spot, without much fatigue or any extraordinary exertion. The only precaution for travellers to take is to leave Quebec when the steamer starts at or before 5 o'clock in the afternoon. They will then be nearly certain of reaching St. Francis in time for the stage of the following morning. We may add here that the fare to Sherbrooke is 26 shillings, and the traveller is allowed to carry a fair quantity of baggage."

37 YEARS OF PROGRESS

During the past thirty-seven years it has been our privilege to have a business association with this unique boys' school. During this time we have watched this famous school grow, we have watched its students prepare themselves for university, continue to university, graduate and take their places among Canada's outstanding industrial, professional and political leaders.

Many of the graduates of B. C. S. have taken part in two great wars of the Twentieth Century and many have paid the supreme sacrifice.

It is with great pride and honor, that we are privileged to pay tribute, in this small way to a school of as high repute as Bishop's College School.

May we take this opportunity of expressing congratulations for your progress, and wish you continued success in the years to come.

LEARN TO BE A LEADER THROUGH R.O.T.P.

Young Canadians, graduating from High School this year, have a wonderful opportunity to go on to exciting careers in the Navy, Army or Air Force. Through the Regular Officer Training Plan (ROTP) qualified applicants can obtain a college education, military training, and ultimately the Queen's Commission . . . all under the sponsorship of the Department of National Defence.

On acceptance, applicants become Officer Cadets and attend one of the three Services Colleges . . . Royal Military College, Royal Roads, Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean . . . or a designated Canadian University. During the summer they train with their chosen Service.

Officer Cadets receive ROTP rates of pay throughout their training. At the Services Colleges, quarters, food and all necessary equipment are provided. Cadets at Universities receive allowances for food and lodging, tuition, books and instruments.

For full information write to:

Regular Officer Training Plan Selection Board,
National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa, or:—
Registrar, Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont., or Registrar, Royal Roads, Victoria, B.C., or Registrar, Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean,
Saint-Jean, P.Q., or
The nearest Navy, Army or Air Force
Recruiting Station

To be eligible: applicants must have Senior Matriculation or equivalent. In addition, a limited number of Junior Matriculants will be accepted at Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean for a special preparatory year to bring them to Senior Matriculation standard. Age limits for Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean are 16 to 20, for all others 16 to 21 on 1st January of year of entrance. Applicants must be single, physically fit and able to meet officer selection standards.

WHAT?

Thinking of a CAREER — or just a job?

Like most smart students, you'll want a lifetime career — not just a job at so much a week. And a career in banking could well be the answer to your plans for the future. Banking today offers a wider variety of interesting and better-paid positions than ever before. Consider it seriously before reaching your decision.

And here are some of the attractions

Canada's First Bank offers young graduates starting in banking...good increases regularly if you are good at your job...an effective training programme to prepare you for advancement...promotion based on merit — not seniority...pension and group insurance benefits...a genuine combination of opportunity and security.

If you are interested in finding out more about banking as a career, have a chat with your nearest B of M manager. You'll find him most helpful.

Poor Richard's Almanack

The life of Benjamin Franklin illustrates the truth of his own words, for though this marks the 251st anniversary of his birth, Franklin's remarkable achievements continue to influence the daily lives of many Canadians. He was responsible for the establishment of The Montreal Gazette in 1778, thereby creating a tradition that still lives as part of the very fabric of its community and country.
